Gratz Grabs Groceries

Gratz Washenk, a junior at Capitol Campus, recently won a grocery shopping spree at the Giant Food supermarket of Middletown.

Besides taking all the meat he could carry, Washenk also grabbed two large-size Hershey bars. Washenk confessed to have examined the store's inventory during a trial run.

The contest was sponsored by the Meade Heights Board of Governors, a student activities organization at Capitol Campus, in cooperation with Giant Food Inc..

The university board and the food store will split the cost of the prize.

Washenk managed to grab $163. worth of food during his three minute spree. "It was a thrill to grab all the things I wouldn't have to pay for--all in one shot," he said.

W. Wilson Goode, Chairman of the Public Utility Commission, a guest of Capitol Campus on April 26th.

by Jeff Drinnan

W. Wilson Goode, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) announced that the PUC will not make a decision on whether or not the commission will grant a rate hike to Metropolitan Edison.

The announcement was made at a meeting held in the Gallery Lounge on Thursday, April 23. He stated that the PUC will decide on a rate hike only after an investigation to find out "Who done it?"

The purpose of the meeting, like any other PUC public meetings, is to inform the public and answer questions people may have about the PUC and to create a "dialogue" between the public and the PUC, Goodman explained.

The PUC regulates utilities, which are a legal monopoly, in Pennsylvania.

Sheldon ekes out win

Michael Sheldon was elected president of the Student Government Association (SGA) in the spring election.

Michael Cocciardi was elected vice-president; Stacy Brubaker, Secretary, and the position of treasurer is still not filled.

The senatorial positions were filled as follows. Douglas Cook, senior senator; Jonathan E. Hostler, senior senator-at-large, both candidates are in the engineering department. Samuel T. Bookheimer was elected social science senior senator, Ernie Thakor, math science senator, Kimberly Benner, business science senior senator.

and John D. Brown, graduate senator. SGA is looking for three juniors who wish to be a senior senator next year.

The student court denied the rumor that spring election ballots were thrown out because they contained a vote for student provost.

The counting procedure was explained to the senate body on Tuesday, April 24. Dave Dunke, who lost the presidency by just three votes, accepted the ballot procedures.

Mike Sopata, chief justice, stated only a candidate can challenge the ballot counting procedures by submitting a letter to that effect. No candidate has challenged the procedures, according to Sopata.

Sopata said that ballots for the presidency were counted three times.

Keith Yundt, who counted the ballots along with Sopata. Craig Hocker and Tom Rodgers, said "The court strongly resents the attack on their integrity."

The voting ballot had two halves: One half for voting for executive officers, the other for voting for senatorial candidates. Sopata said that one ballot for voting for executive officers was voided because it was ripped in half. From the senatorial half, 32 ballots were voided because no major was checked.
