Model U.N.

courses around the Model U.N. He added that there are seminars during the conference that are designed to assist teachers in planning courses in world culture and foreign affairs. "The teacher seminars help the teachers in selecting materials for their courses if they choose to do so," Gilpin said.

Although some of the teachers like to prod the delegates into making decisions, Gilpin said that most teachers that come to the conference act only in an advisory role.

When asked if they felt that the students enjoy the three-day conference, both Gilpin and Yundt agreed that the Capitol Campus Model U.N. leaves a tremendous impression on the students involved.

"I know several students who participated in the Model U.N. as high school students that now attend Capitol Campus," Gilpin said.

He also mentioned that some of the college students who help with the conference return to Capitol in order to attend the conference.

Gilpin and Yundt were both concerned about the long lines in the dining hall which will occur Friday and Saturday during lunch and dinner. "The students will enter the dining hall after 12:30 p.m. for lunch and 5:30 p.m. for dinner," Gilpin said.

Yundt recommended that Capitol students who normally eat late Friday and Saturday either make it to the dining hall earlier than usual, or be prepared to wait in line behind more than 200 hungry delegates.

The Model U.N. is good for all those involved because it helps to break up the routine of Winter term for Capitol students, and it provides a chance for high school students to come in close contact with college students.

Gilpin said that the conference "forces me to realize that not everyone in the world is a junior or senior college student."

Yundt remarked that there is a certain twinkle in the eyes of many Capitol males concerning the young female delegates. However, he was quick to add that "males would be advised to control themselves (at least somewhat) for the three-day duration."

Both Gilpin and Yundt expressed their thanks to Capitol students. "The IAA is very appreciative to all students who have been willing to give their room and floor space to help make this conference a huge success," Gilpin said.

Capitol Campus,
the imaginary school;
a campus forgotten now,
oh how so cruel.

Once we had beer,
the only relief;
then they went and stole it,
just like a thief.

Once we had Keggers,
oh the fun we had;
drinking, dancing,
and always acting bad.

Once we had a concert,
it was so grand;
a sunny day, plenty of beer,
rocking to the band.

Once we had fun,
a great place to be;
the times we remember,
in faded memory.

In the shadow of TMI,
this campus sits;
a social zero.
THIS PLACE IS THE PITS.

Capitol Campus

By Chas Holapka

Middletown, Pennsylvania is where it's at A G.D. bar and laundromat
A town of joys, a town of cheers
A town that drives you to drinking beers

For men to women, it's eight to one
You're in sad shape if you want fun.
Why put a campus in this f-ing town
Where even a dog can turn you down?

Somebody likes it? Is that what you say?
Well, if they do, they must be gay.
To a fag, I guess, it's kinda nice;
I guess they would call it a paradise.

There's nothing to do but turn fat and lazy;
If you're here too long you'll probably be crazy.
Insanity ranks high among graduate men;
Their minds will never be the same again.

I've been here too long, I wanna go home
Look, I'm crazy. I'm writing a poem
The men in white are at my door
Stick this place, then, stick it some more.
