

CAPITOL CONQUERS THE ALUMNI

Capitol Campus Lions defeated the alumni squad 90-74 last Friday night. Senior Forward Bob Hassel (above), attempts a free throw as Dave Shannon (10) and All-American Candidate Jack Wilson (30) look on. The Lions built their lead to over 20 points when Coach Dan Phillips brought in the reserves. The alumni squad then went to work on the second team. Led by Virgil Jules (22 pts.), and Terry Ferrell (14 pts.), the alumni made a gallant effort to overcome the Capitol explosion. Junior Forward Barry Cummings (below), tips in two of his game high 25 points, as he towers over the alumni defenders. Also figuring in on the scoring for the Capitol team were roommates Wilson, 16 points, and Shannon, 14 points. Next stop for the Lions is on Saturday night as they invade Lebanon Valley College

ALL DO "YAY" At ALL-U-Day

By John Reutter

There are approximately 25,000 students attending Penn State, Main Campus, and approximately 2,400 students attending Penn State, Capitol Campus. But on one day of the football season each year, they are joined together with other Penn State branch campus students in school spirit and social exchange.

The annual All-U-Day game was designed to bring students from the Penn State campuses and the main campus together.

This year the All-U-Day ceremonies were celebrated on the first of November. Capitol Campus was represented by approximately 60 spirited students.

The day started with a tailgate party in the stadium parking lot followed by the football game against the University of Miami (Fla.). The party, a joint effort by all students, alumni and others, allows students to interact with other branch-and-main campus students in a festive atmosphere.

After the game, which Penn State won 27-12, the students were on their own. Some retreated into town for dinner. Some met with their brothers and sisters at various fraternity and sorority houses. Whatever the case, for some students this was the only chance during the school year to visit the "home" campus.

"I've never been to Main Campus before," said one student, "I wish I had gone before. I've met some interesting people and have had some fun at the same time."

"The students who don't take advantage of the chance to visit Main Campus are in a way taking away from their education, since it is here that the roots of their education are located."

A majority of the students who attended All-U-Day made sure to visit their favorite watering holes. Whatever the style (country-western, disco, rock or oldies) one can find a bar suited to his musical and alcoholic taste.

Everyone who attended mentioned the fine treatment Main Campus residents gave the branch campus students. However, the residents stated otherwise.

"It's nice to see new faces and fresh ideas around here," stated a Main Campus resident. "Too bad they don't have more days like this throughout the year. We could use the money."

But during All-U-Day everything is not always rosy. A college policeman said, "Disorderly conduct, robberies and sexual harrassment are all high during this weekend, and unfortunately most of the law-breakers are branch campus residents."

One member of the stadium cleaning crew said, "After the All-U-Day game there are more bottles, glasses and drug paraphernalia found in the stadium than at any other game throughout the year."

With over 80,000 people attending the All-U-Day game, Main Campus will probably be able to clean up. But to over 60 Capitol Campus students who attended, the memory of their day at Main Campus will remain in their hearts forever.
