

C.C. bleeder

Pennsylvania State University at Capitol Campus

Volume 1, No. 1

Middletown, PA. 17057

1 April, 1981

And You Thought The Philadelphia Journal Was Bizarre...

APRIL FOOLS!

BLEEDER File Photo

Mr. William E. Kistler, seen here gleefully opening his invitation to the 1938 Academy Awards, has become a legend at Capitol Campus. He went on to capture the Oscar for Best Actor in his lead role in the hit film "The Apes of Wrath."

ACROSS

1. Street in Cleveland, Ohio
5. John _____
10. April (abbrev.)
14. Charlie Brown's middle name
15. A verb
16. State 20 miles south of Hawaii
17. Street parallel to 1 across
20. Time required to prepare a 3-minute egg
21. Abe Lincoln's favorite color
22. Miami Dolphins' third baseman
23. Baltimore Orioles' wide receiver
24. Perfect participle of 15 across
27. Famous brand of corkscrew
30. "Coke adds life to _____"
32. Color of flowers
34. An insect
35. Animal with four legs
36. Of the family "Aceraceae"
37. Ingredient in cake
40. Top song of 1842
41. Creator of "Walt Disney"
42. Deceased Russian czar
43. Flavor of lollipops
44. A Spanish word
45. A tool
46. A shoe size
48. _____Hitler: Adolf's brother
49. Not one of the original 13 colonies
50. Opposite of chair
55. A long word
60. Christopher Columbus' Social Security number
61. Dartboard: Lithuanian
62. Address of local KKK
63. _____Mouse: Mickey's half-brother
64. A TV show
65. Amount of tea in China (pounds)

DOWN

1. Composer of 40 across
2. Edith Bunker's maiden name
3. Catholic rabbi
4. Jewish priest
5. Weight of the moon (ounces)
6. Capital of 16 across
7. E= _____
8. Well-known cavern in Vermont
9. Mrs. _____: a woman
10. A pronoun
11. Famous Shakespearean novel
12. _____= MC2
13. Gun (abbrev.)
18. This holiday occurs only once a year
19. A funny comedian
23. Notorious 18th Century jaywalker
24. Christmas fell on this day in 1903
25. A reptile
26. Nickname of San Diego's professional hockey franchise
27. World-renowned xylophonist
28. A winged bird
29. A warm-blooded mammal
30. A carnivorous creature
31. Coach of 26 down
33. Thanksgiving didn't fall on this day last year
36. The Battle of _____
38. Best month of the year to plant succotash
39. Worst month of the year to plant succotash
44. Animal larger than 29 down
47. Bizarre circumstance
48. _____ball
50. Middle name of Geronimo's uncle (deceased)
51. Letter of intent
52. Doctor _____: Instructor at Capitol Campus
53. City in the U.S.
54. Anonymous poet
55. The first woman on the moon
56. Cucumber capital of the world
57. A short word
58. Sports complex in Rhode Island
59. Sixth largest township in Alaska

BLEEDER Photo by Mark W. Clauser

READER FAN-TOMS - Bill Neil and Mark Clauser are shown displaying the C.C. Reader... Oh, we forgot to show the positive side!

Letter

Editor:

Good day ladies and gentlemen. My name is Frank Nelk and I represent the human rights movement. The only thing my kind is good for is solving most of the major social injustices of our time. These include desegregating schools through forced busing, decreasing the national debt, and ailing our poor welfare recipients by taxing our middle class to bring them down to the same level.

While all of these achievements are most impressive, you as a C.C. student may not feel directly affected by them. So let me tell you what we've done for YOU to preserve your rights.

We stopped those nasty things called keggars this campus used to have until about two years ago. These keggars were characterized by loud noises into the wee hours of the morning, the drinking of large quantities of beer by an unruly crowd of which a fair percentage being minors, pot smoking, and, yes, even some illicit sex! Everyone knew about these keggars. For your benefit, we replaced these keggars with parties! These parties are characterized by music played at stimulating volumes into the late hours of the evening, massive consumption of beverages by an assortment of students with contingents of Central Penn youth, use of controlled substances, and maybe even some rewarding, one-night relationships! No one "knows" (wink) about those parties! Aren't you glad we changed things for the better?

My people understand that most of the officers of Student Government Association think they are bigger (taller) than they really are. We feel that Provost Dr. Theodore Gross is an unselfish man whose only goal is to improve the quality of student life at Capitol (through building new entrance signs with money that the C.C. alumni think they pledged). We believe the editor of the C.C. Reader is so right-wing that he walks sideways. We know the Department of Housing and Food Service is only looking out for the best interests of residents. We think the Residence Living Program is too permissive for our own good. Also, the informal fraternal organizations on campus are good for nothing but promoting the abuse of mind-altering chemicals. We feel the administration should do everything in its power to rotate instructors often and get rid of the good ones before they go bad. We know that change is important for its own sake and is only another word for progress.

If you share these views, lie down and let those rednecks trip over you. You'll feel better for doing it. We shall conquer in the end because the right is with the left. And Leonard Wumke? Well, he can go to hell! Peace, brothers.

Frank Nelk