TARNHELM NEWS

With magazine production still several months away, Tarnhelm will hold its first meeting next Monday to get prospective members and writers together. The meeting will be held in room W-129 at 3:30 p.m.

In addition to introducing the magazine to new members, the meeting will be a discussion of possible production alternatives. The recently approved budget allows enough money for a 32-page magazine, as in previous years, but within that frame the magazine could highlight a special theme or use any expressive medium suitable for a standard magazine format. Bring your ideas.

Editor, Tarnhelm

STUDENTS AGLOW

We'd like to thank our guests from the Capitol Campus community for a well-attended viewing of our first film this term, "The Cross and the Switchblade." Afterward, refreshments and comments concluded the evening program. The next film to be shown is "Jesus," in English cinema adaptation from the Gospel of Luke. It received a high rating of critical acclaim when it was released three years ago. Much of the action is filmed on location in Israel, using natural dress and a cast of thousands. The reels begin rolling at 7:30 on Tuesday, October 20 in W-132. There will be free admission and food.

Future events include a come-as-you-are Coffeehouse on Oct. 27 in the Student Center beginning at 8 p.m. Music, skits and games are on the agenda. Are there any pinocle players out there? Also, each Sunday there is a 10 a.m. worship service in the Student Center. Everyone is invited.

DELTA TAU KAPPA

As a student organization, Delta Tau Kappa is unique in that it is the only Honor Society on campus. Our major purpose is twofold: to promote the highest level of scholastic achievement and to provide a forum where all Social Science students can further their own goals, be they personal or academic.

At our October 13 meeting, Dr. Whittaker spoke about his recent trip to China, with an emphasis on the social and political changes. We will continue to sponsor similar programs, as well as student-led debates on various topics, throughout the year. We will also be sponsoring a research paper competition each term, with an award presented for the best Social Science paper, as determined by a faculty panel.

Our main concern is to promote communication and understanding between students and faculty within the Social Science field. Membership in DTK is an opportunity to meet informally with students who have similar interests as well as a chance to belong to an international organization. The benefits of membership are dependent on your involvement.

Any Social Science student with a GPA of 3.0 or better who may be interested in membership is encouraged to stop by our office in W-110 for more information. We also have a provisional membership for new students who have not yet earned a GPA here at Capitol. Our meetings are held every other Tuesday and are open to all interested students. Information concerning time and place is posted on the bulletin board across from the Gallery Lounge. If you prefer, you may contact any of the officers listed below:

President—Kevin Frederick, 944-3694
Vice-president—Jeff Davis, 566-8416
Vice-President—K. Lamb, 944-0714
Treasurer—G. Dickensheets, 737-6350
Secretary—Justina Pitts, 948-7968

DATA PROCESSING MANAGEMENT ASSOCIATION

The Data Processing Association (DPMA) of Capitol Campus is a student chapter of the International DPMA and is sponsored by the central Pennsylvania chapter of DPMA in Harrisburg. The DPMA is a relatively young organization (two years old) oriented toward providing a social environment for information, discussion, and activities relating to the computer field.

The DPMA's membership consists of students who have an option or interest in computer applications. Students majoring in engineering, mathematical science, and business administration make up a majority of the club's current membership. Student members will attend the meetings of the local DPMA chapter in Harrisburg.

Despite being a young organization, activities already sponsored by DPMA range from tours and guest speakers to programming contests. For example, last year's programs included speakers from the General Accounting Office in Washington D.C., the Pennsylvania Department of Education, and Radio Shack. Guest speakers tentatively planned for this year include an EDP auditor and representatives from Penn Dot and Apple. In addition to the guest speakers, tours of local industry are being planned. These activities are designed to provide students with exposure to the industry and its working professionals.

Without a doubt, the most challenging activity supported by DPMA has been the regional contest of the Fortran Programming Competition. Sponsored by the Association of Computing Machinery, the contest will take place again this year on November 21 in Philadelphia. The competition consists of groups of four students working to solve computer programming problems assigned just prior to the start of the competition. This year, as in the past, DPMA will be sending a team of four qualified students to the competition. These students need not be members of the club, but must meet certain qualifications.

The qualifications for participation are as follows: the student must be attending Capitol Campus full-time, must have knowledge of Fortran programming and data structures (CMPAP 440 course or equivalent), and must not graduate before March of next year. When a reasonable number of applicants is received, a screening process will begin which will lead to the final choosing of four students. All qualified and interested students are urged to contact Mrs. Gayle Yaverbaum (E 356, 948-6154) as soon as possible.

More information about the DPMA club can be obtained by attending the meetings, or by contacting Alexis Meek, Cathy Ryan, Fred Hummel, or any DPMA member. Regular meetings of the club are posted on the bulletin boards around campus.

WOMEN BEWARE

What if birth control were illegal? This and other questions will be addressed at a panel discussion entitled "Women Beware: The Government May Be Dangerous To Your Health, Welfare, And Happiness." The discussion is scheduled for October 22 in the B.C.A.C. Lounge from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Panel members will discuss the Omnibus Bill (Abortion Control Act), The Shared Custody Bill, The Rape Victim Confidentiality Act, The Family Protection Act, and The Title 9 Act (Anti-Discrimination Law).

Refreshments will be served and latecomers are welcome.

PHI BETA LAMBDA

On behalf of Phi Beta Lambda, I would like to extend my warmest welcome to all students and faculty members. I hope everyone had a most enjoyable summer. For those of you who did not attend summer classes, PBL was still kicking during the summer.

Presently PBL is looking for new members. This term we will be electing a junior vice-president and a treasurer, and both offices are open to any paid member. Anyone interested in joining PBL and possibly running for either office can contact any PBL member or stop in our office in W-110.

Finally, I would like to thank all the PBL members who helped with our successful fund-raiser. I would also like to thank everyone for their patronage. Your support of our organization is greatly appreciated.

Kevin Williams
President, Phi Beta Lambda

Fund Raiser

During Orientation and the first week of classes, PBL held its first fund raising event. The club sold memo boards, stuffed animals, pencil sharpeners, first-aid kits, and posters. The funds raised from this event will help send club members to the Eastern Regional Conference in Rhode Island.

Wine Tour

On September 30, members of PBL enjoyed their second tour of the Nissley Winery. Two new members, Jock Carter and Bill Brooks, joined the president and his cabinet on the scenic trip to Bainbridge, Pa. Mixing a little sport before pleasure, the group played a game of Nerf football before touring the winery. The tour included the vineyards, the pressing machines, the storage and bottling process, and, of course, the tasting. A short meeting was held after the tour. Some of the topics discussed were meeting times, advisor's position, the 10-K, new members, fund raisers, and other tours, including a return trip to the winery in March.

Conference Corner

The Phi Beta Lambda Eastern Regional Conference is coming up in November. This year's conference is being held in Providence, Rhode Island on November 13, 14 and 15. We will be staying at Biltmore Plaza Hotel. Various activities will be held during the conference, including workshops in management skills and interview techniques and guest speakers from the business community. The conference is open to any active member of PBL. Additional information can be obtained in the PBL office.
