

Friday,
December 16, 1983
Vol. 18, No. 4

Capitol Times

Instructor's efforts
redevelop historic church
...pages 10, 11

Rating the profs, evaluation process outlined...page 1
Fooling with food, reporter gets taste of kitchen life...page 13
Basketball turnaround expected, team goes into semester break...page 17

Iris Wood (right) and Richard Stokes perform a scene from Moliere's The Forced Marriage, a 17th century play. One of six scenes presented in Bits and Pieces.

Drama presented in "bits and pieces"

By Jeff Shatzer

Theatre 301 students presented Bits and Pieces, a program celebrating 25 centuries of Western drama, on December 4 at 7:00 p.m. in the auditorium. Six scenes from various periods were performed by the students as a term project. Each of the six students involved directed one of the scenes. Theater 301, taught by Melvin H. Wolf, is comprised of Katherine Fritz, Mary Lou Harris, James Sein-Lwin, Richard Stokes, David Vetterlein and Iris Wood. The scenes were staged in the Presentational technique, which utilizes few props, simple lighting, and unornamented costumes.

Front cover photo by Jerry Tremly

Back cover photo by Jeffrey G. Shatzer