

Autumn buzz features variety of events

By Annette Childs and Ken Stiggers

The beginning of autumn was certainly in its bloom this weekend with the annual Autumn Buzz weekend celebrations.

The Student Union Board of Governors started the weekend off presenting a live concert. The Sharks and the Inciters performed Friday night at the Gym in the Multi-Purpose Building. The Inciters appeared first followed by the Sharks three 50-minute sets. Everyone that attended seemed to enjoy themselves. Some people sat in the bleachers and just listened to the two bands, and others jumped down from the bleachers and started dancing on the floor. It was a very exciting evening.

There were also two students -- Clinton Lattany Jr. and Ghan Desai -- there who videotaped the concert so it can be available for those who missed it.

There were a variety of different opinions from those who attended the concert about its success. Sandy Bragiel, an Energy Engineering Technology student said, "I really enjoyed the concert, in fact I'm looking for someone who has the album. I was really impressed by both groups, and I liked the lighting effects they provided in the Gym." Rich Bergins, an M.D.E.T. student, said, "It was good; it was very good! It was a better sound effect in the Gym, it was like being at a concert." "I liked the Inciters and the first set of the Sharks, but the second set started to get kind of boring," stated John Thomas, an engineering student.

with ideas to help," Schnier added.

Saturday afternoon the women's volleyball team played PSU - Berks Campus. Capitol won the first game, lost the second and won the third when Berks forfeited. Berks forfeited because they only had six players, one of whom suffered a knee injury. That left Berks with only five players, but six are needed to play.

The Octoberfest Dance was held Saturday night at the Student Center. The music was provided by Charlie Van Horn Company playing Top 40 and funk tunes with a mixture of rock and polka tunes. The attendance was also small for this event. Food was also served at this event free-of-charge.

The Road Rally was held Sunday beginning in the Olmsted back lot, sponsored by memorating their prizes. All rally participants will receive a complimentary MHCC Road Rally - Fall '84 plaque.

The last event of the Autumn Buzz was a movie held at the Student Center. Chi Rho and the Tennis Club presented "Attack of the Killer Tomatoes." The film was free to the public, but there was still a small turnout for this emerging cult film.

The movie was a comedy about tomatoes invading the country killing everyone who came in contact with them.

Schnier stated in his final comments, "What you learn outside of class is just as important as what you learn in class. Some of the other organizations should try to participate more by attending the scheduled events." He also said, "We are not into making money, all of our funds are used for having more events in the future. Everyone who attended had a good time and I had a good time. Regardless of the turnout, as long as we had a good time, we did our part."

There was one problem that arose with the two groups. The Inciters wanted more time to perform than stated on their contract. Jeff Schnier, president of SUBOG, said, "there was a problem with the contract, but it was resolved, and I won." The Inciters only performed the time that was designated on the contract.

Schnier was disappointed with the turnout of the events during the whole Autumn Buzz weekend. "A lot of students don't realize it, but they are paying for these events with their tuition fees. There is something to do every day, and if they don't like what is happening they should come up the Meade Heights Community Council with twenty-two people entered. Prizes were based on the closest to accurate mileage, the number of correct answers to "trick" questions, and predetermined time for completion following all rules of the road. The first prize of $50 went to Brian Miccichi, driver, and Jennifer Miccichi, the navigator. Eileen Everett and Joel Hager received the second prize of $30, while the third prize of $20 went to Tom Ganard and Dave Scheidegg.

The Booby Prize for last place was a trophy awarded to Louise Kleinknecht and Michelle Albaugh. All winners will receive a certificate com-
