

Students and faculty attend conference

By Ken Stiggers

Six graduate students and two members of Capitol's faculty attended a community psychology conference recently. Social science instructor Ida Gentzler and social science/psychology professor Robert Colman accompanied the students to the Northeastern Community Psychology Conference in New York City on Oct. 20.

The conference, sponsored by the Division of community psychology of the American Psychological Association, took place in the Psychological Department at New York University. The Division of Behavioral Sciences and Education funded the trip.

Saturday morning consisted of a keynote address, "Social Change and Community Psychology in the Year 1990," by Ed Seidman. Then the graduate students chose to attend one of the five roundtable discussions. In the afternoon, they attended one out of the four site visits to exemplary community programs or a workshop at the N.Y.U. conference site.

The trip, encouraged by Colman, Gentzler and the Graduate Student Union, served as an educational venture for all graduate students -- especially those in the community psychology department -- and as a precedent for future field trips in the graduate education programs at Capitol Campus.

"The students and professors were pleased with the trip to New York City," said one student who attended the conference.

Vocalists entertain at noon in Gallery Lounge

By Ken Stiggers

Alan Brinser, Paige Paulishin, Ty and Sherry Walker and Maude King entertained students and faculty on Monday, October 23 with a midday interlude, consisting of selections from some of the great productions of the American Musical Theater.

The four vocalists along with accompanist Maude King, performed numbers from 14 different Broadway musicals beginning with the Stephen Sondheim hit, "Comedy Tonight," from the musical "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum." The group end the musical interlude with a dramatic selection titled "What I Did For Love," from the 1975 smash musical "A Chorus Line." That special selection exemplified the devotion which all performers have for their craft.
