

SGA Update

By Luke Hess

The Student Government Association for Capital College learned that Coordinator of Student Activities Jennifer Krohn will no longer be serving as S.G.A. advisor. According to Peg O'Hara, Coordinator of Career Planning and Placement, Krohn will be pursuing her doctorate in higher education at University Park. O'Hara will serve as temporary advisor until a permanent replacement is found.

A contribution of approximately $300 was approved by S.G.A. toward purchasing software for the computer in the Student Activities Office. The software package will help to more effectively keep records of club budgets.

S.G.A. President Jeanette Brinker appointed Panos Xynarios to position of graduate senator. Xynarios is completing studies at Capital College for his master's degree in public administration.

A new constitution for Powerhouse Fellowship was submitted to and approved by the S.G.A. Powerhouse Fellowship is a new student organization designed to bring together Capital College students interested in christian fellowship and community activities.

Penn State has terminated insurance for club advisors because of rising costs, according to Associate Provost for Administrative Operations, Dr. James South. South told S.G.A. members at a recent meeting that faculty members serving as student club advisors are no longer covered by Penn State's liability insurance and that S.G.A. should think about ways to cover this cost through its treasury.

Capital Times recently received approval for the purchase of an Apple computer. The Times currently has its typesetting performed by the Press and Journal newspaper in Middletown. After the typesetting process, the copy is checked for errors, corrected and returned. The new computer will eliminate this inefficient handling of copy. The $6400 computer will be financed in part by Capital Times, the Humanities Division, and the S.G.A. The computer will be available to other student organizations needing its services.

The S.G.A. meets each Tuesday at 12:20 p.m. in room E202-Olmsted Building.

The Great Peace March is Coming Through Harrisburg

The schedule for the 700 marchers now crossing the country on their way to our nation's capital:

-Carlisle, October 8
-Harrisburg, October 9 and 10
-Walk to Hershey, October 11

This is your chance to take part in a history-making march for nuclear disarmament and peace.

-Invite marchers to speak/entertain members of your church/congregation, school, union or community group.

-Hold a house party/fund raiser to help provide financial support for the marchers. Videotape available.

-Provide overnight housing for two (2) or more of the marchers.

-Walk with the marchers from Harrisburg to Hershey Saturday, October 11.

-Help with a check, payable to the Great Peace March, c/o 315 Peffer Street, Harrisburg, PA 17102.

-Call 233-3072 now to volunteer your help.

advocacy.

"It is a major duty of humans to find out about company heads," Nader said. "Stop reacting to company slogans and condition yourself to evaluate the product. Remember, countries of people who didn't have time to question are now run by dictators, and suffering the effects of hunger and poverty."

QUESTION #2.
