

RSC Improves Campus Living

By Denise Reinas

Resident Student Council is made up of elected representatives from each floor of Church and Wisberg Halls. Its primary function is to improve the quality of residence living and to improve the facilities and services that are available to all of the residents in the dorms.

This year, fourteen representatives were elected. Elections were then held for the offices of president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer. Brian Humble, advisor of RSC, said, "I was very interested in revitalizing and re-establishing the importance of RSC. And judging from the initial meetings, I'm very pleased with the members and their enthusiasm."

The RSC members represent the student population in the dorms. They take complaints and try to improve them, they accept suggestions to try to enhance student life, and they hold many fund raising events. Debbie Everett, vice president of RSC, said, "I would like to see RSC reach its full potential for successful fund raising and establish a harmony between students of all backgrounds." Ms. Everett also stated that she would like to see RSC add new dimensions to dormitory life.

RSC also tries to promote a sense of community; it tries to enhance the social aspects of residence living. Melissa Wohrle, president of RSC, stated, "I would like RSC to become very active this year so that the students will enjoy living here and so they will obtain a memorable experience. After all, college is not exclusively books and tests—it's also a social learning experience."
