

Around Capital College

By Judy Hricak

QUESTION: If you could change one thing at Capital College, what would it be?

Luke Hess: That WNDR would go FM

Ronda Graby: The attitudes of the students

Mike McClure: The attitude of apathy among the student body

Michelle Sutton: I think there should be mailboxes in Olmsted building for all students, including commuters, to enhance student-faculty communication, student-student communication and student participation.

Deann Hess: I would like more students to participate in campus activities

Marty Jordan: I would change my grades

Jeff Libey: I would change the amount of money given to athletic teams

Kevin Clark: I would change the girl to guy ratio

Brad Stauch: I would change the engineering lab into a more updated facility

Erin Jablonski: I would like more student involvement

Greg Tyler: I would change professors' attitudes, put women on the second floor of Olmsted and I would abolish the writing assessment test.

Bob Stoffar: I would abolish the writing assessment test

Eric Richardson: I would abolish the writing assessment test

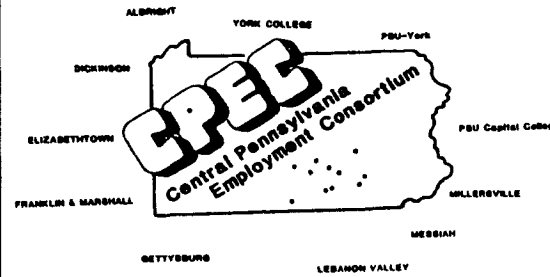

Dale Zartman: I would change the attitude of the students toward social activities

Karen Barlich: I would change the students' attitude toward social activities

John D'Ambrosia: I would make the weightroom better equipped and I would put more girls in it.

Opinions expressed do not necessarily reflect those of the Capital Times. If you have any questions you would like answered, please drop them in the Capital Times comment box on the landing between the first floor and basement off the main lobby.

CPEC Job Fair Is Coming

Area Chamber of Commerce, Hershey Foods Corporation, IBM Corporation and York International Corporations. Representative from each college and organization have devoted a great deal of time into the planning and organization of the JOB FAIR.

The JOB FAIR will be held on Thursday, February 18, 1988 from 9am to 4pm at the state Farmshow Complex in Harrisburg. On that day, over 100 employer representatives from the Northeastern part of the United States will be present to interview job candidates for employment possibilities. These employers represent a broad cross-section of organizations both in type and size. All are looking for qualified applicants to hire for present or anticipated job openings.

Are you a senior or graduate student seeking permanent employment? Then take advantage of the Central Pennsylvania Employment Consortium (CPEC) Job Fair to be held before Spring break.

The JOB FAIR is for all majors and is free to graduating students from Penn State Harrisburg. It is also available to all Penn State Harrisburg alumni who are in the process of changing jobs.

The CPEC is a group of 11 colleges and six organizations who are working together to help provide better employment opportunities for the students who attend these institutions. In addition to Capital College, the ten other colleges involved are Albright College, Dickinson College, Elizabethtown College, Franklin and Marshall College, Gettysburg College, Lebanon Valley College, Messiah College, Millersville University, Penn State York and York College of Pennsylvania. The six organizations who belong to CPEC are AMP, Inc. Electronic Data Systems, Harrisburg

The Career Services office is holding CPEC informational meetings during the month of November. Attend one to watch a video on what to expect at the JOB FAIR and learn how to prepare for the event. Formal registration will be held during the first three weeks in December through the Career Services Office.

For names of the companies planning to recruit at the JOB FAIR and for the times, dates, and locations of the CPEC informational meetings, read the postings on the Career Service Bulletin Boards (outside W-101, Olmsted Building and on the second floor of the Capital Union Building.)

An Open Letter to the College Community Concerning Coverage by the Capital Times

Dear Students,

It has come to the attention of our staff that there is a general dissatisfaction with the coverage of the Capital Times. We are committed to covering any and all campus activities as time permits. However, we ask for patience from you, the readers, because first and foremost we are students and like other students, we have full academic schedules with many demands on our time. Many times we just don't have enough reporters to assign to stories.

This is where we need your help. We are no different than any other newspaper. If your club or organization is having an event it is your responsibility to let us know. Otherwise, we may not even know it is happening.

If you want to ensure information about a club event or activity is included in the Capital Times, please prepare a press release with all pertinent information and submit it to us. We are happy to print stories submitted by any member of the Capital College Community.

So, instead of being angry about lack of coverage, how about giving us a hand.

Sincerely,

Jan Travers

SENIORS

NOW PLAYING:

"In Search of Employment"

STARRING:

CPEC

FEATURING:

IBM, Abbington Hospital,
Hershey Foods Corp., AMP, and many more

See your Career Services
Office for more details.