

Local church invites public to community carol sing

The public is cordially invited to an old fashioned Carol Sing at Old St. Peter's Kierch in Middletown on Sunday, Dec. 11 at 7 p.m.

The Old Kierch, built in 1769, is featured on many historical tours. The building is located on the corner of Union and High Streets in Middletown.

This annual caroling is hosted by St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church of Middletown and the congregation is looking forward to welcoming members of the community to an old fashioned evening of Christmas fellowship. Favorite carols will be sung and refreshments will be served.

The program consists of alternating lesson readings and carols, and is divided into three sections: The Wait, The Birth, and The Epiphany.

The Wait will consist of a reading from the book of Isaiah, and the carols "O Come, O Come, Immanuel," "Lo, How a Rose Is Blooming," "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

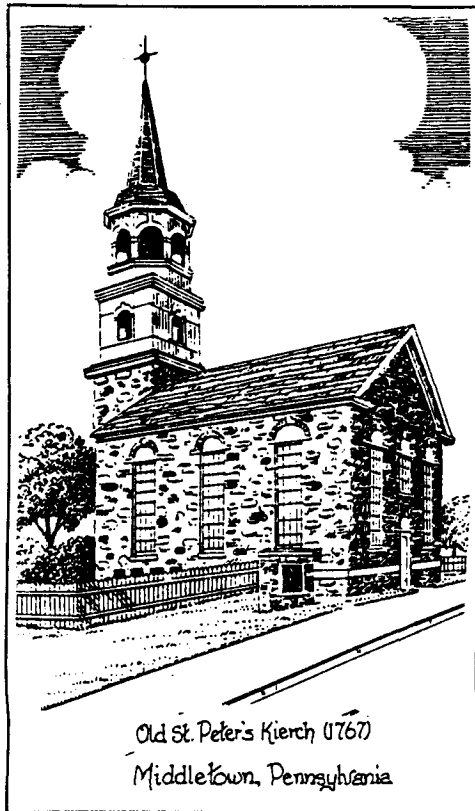

The Birth will consist of readings from the Gospels of St. Matthew, St. Luke, and the carols "Joy to the World," "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Away in a Manger," "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," and "Angels We Have Heard on High."

The Epiphany will consist of a reading from the Gospel of St. Matthew and the carols "The First Noel," "Bring a Torch, Jeanette Isabella," "We Three Kings," and "What Child is This?"

The service will then close with a candle-light singing of "Silent Night."

Mahar feels it "makes us [the humanities division] different." He said of the 1200 humanities programs in the country, only 200 offer bachelor of humanities degrees. He also explained that last spring the humanities division enacted a change from options to majors because the latter is more commonly recognized and respected by businesses.

Other issues discussed at the forum included the increasing need for more computer space for humanities students and the possibility of humanities students receiving credit for working with The Capital Times or WPSH.

Mahar said, "Managing the school newspaper or radio station is very good experience for later on."

Mahar concluded the forum by reminding humanities students he is always available to talk to. He said, "My door is always open."

Tarnhelm '89 Needs You!

Attention creative students from all majors: Tarnhelm '89 is looking for you!

Co-editors Laura Karinch and Judy Farina have announced that they are accepting submissions for the campus arts and literary magazine, Tarnhelm.

The magazine provides an opportunity for Penn State Harrisburg undergraduates and graduate students of all majors to express themselves in the print medium of their choice.

Tarnhelm will consider poetry, short story, essay, black and white photographs and graphic art.

Your most creative work(s) should be submitted following the guidelines below.

Do not place your name on the work; it will be judged anonymously.

Submit your name, address, phone number, major and option, and current term status on a separate cover sheet.

Drop off your submission(s) in either the Tarnhelm mail slot in 216 Olmsted or in W-360.

All entries must be typed on 8 1/2" by 11" unlined paper.

One poem per page.

Short stories and essays should be double-spaced.

Graphics and photography accepted in black and white only.

DEADLINE: Jan. 20, 1989.

Tarnhelm welcomes staff members. All interested students should sign up in W-360, the humanities suite.

Common Exams and Conflict Exams may be scheduled on Saturday, December 17, 1988.

Conflict Examinations occur when (a) two or more final examinations are scheduled at the same time, or (b) three or more examinations are scheduled on the same day. Students having Conflict Examinations must file a Conflict Examination Request Form in the Registrar's Office by Monday November 28, 1988.

Final examinations fulfill two important academic objectives: student integration of instructional material and end-of-semester evaluation of student achievement. However, valid means other than the final examination also accomplish these objectives (e.g., term paper, final project report, take-home examination, etc.). Course instructors determine which of these methods is most appropriate.

In addition, course instructors are expected to:

1. Offer a full schedule of instruction.
2. Schedule no examinations during the last week of classes. (Quizzes and narrowly limited tests may be given.)
3. Schedule final examinations during the established final examination period.
4. When a final examination is not required, require the submission of an alternative means no earlier than the first day of the final examination period.

Final exams must be taken as scheduled except for conflict situations.

All exceptions to the final examination schedule must be approved by the Registrar.
