

Library head plans changes

The Heindel Library at Penn State Harrisburg welcomes Harold B. Shill as the new division head of Library and Informational Services.

A native of New Jersey, Shill previously served as Head Librarian of the Evansdale Library at West Virginia University.

Along with broad library knowledge, he brings experience in political science and government. Shill holds a Master's Degree in Library Science from the University of Maryland and a Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of North Carolina.

Although he has only held the position since August 12, Shill's policy agenda identifies the needs of the library. Shill said he recognizes the library expansion project as the "top, number-one priority at Penn State".

"This institution is strongly committed to building a new library," Shill said, adding that the expansion is "a wonderful opportunity for a person to build a library of the future, if the money is there".

Shill's plans are optimistic despite recent state budget cuts. According to Dr. Shill, top university and government officials indicate the need for fund raising.

Shill's experience in grant proposals comes at an opportune time. Shill said he recognizes the need to solicit support from local government and businesses because the Heindel Library supports major academic research in this area.

An eloquent and soft-spoken man, Shill is enthusiastic when he speaks about the capabilities of "electronic information resources," or computers. Shill's plans include a library orientation for faculty and students, and he also foresees LIAS access to the Eastgate Center at 1010 N. 7th Street in Harrisburg.
