As a result of the recent thefts in the Olmsted Building, precautionary measures have been taken to increase security.

On Fridays, the Olmsted Building will close at 7 p.m., reopening Saturday at 7:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday hours are 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.

The front center and rear center doors will be the only unlocked entrances for access to the building.

Students who are in the Olmsted Building after hours are requested to study in W-205, W-207 or the Lion's Den.

Anyone observing suspicious persons or activities should notify Police Services at 948-6232 or 236-7976, or dial 911 for an emergency.

Screenings, from page 2

participants found the screening to be helpful and informative, and even convinced some to change their lifestyles.

"I'm all stressed-out from classes, and I'm just curious about what kind of health I'm in," said Jerry Eltringham, a junior majoring in secondary education.

Pat Rodkey, a secretary from the provost's office said "I think it's a good idea for people to take advantage of the screening. I'm trying to be more health conscious."

The cholesterol booth was the favorite, followed by the body fat booth. Most people are interested in cholesterol, nutrition, and exercise programs, said Martz.

"It can catch something early to flag an area that needs to be looked into, and it's less expensive than getting a regular physical at a doctor's office," she said. Martz added that funding she received allowed the health screenings to be free, except for a $2 fee for cholesterol testing.
