"Good Ideas" from page 1

Ideas!" include:

- saving electricity costs and energy by a concerted effort to turn off unnecessary lights especially when leaving the classroom
- orientation, including a tour for all new employees
- a bike path from Meade Heights to classrooms on campus for safety.
- saving energy (heating and air conditioning) costs by voluntarily not using the electric door in the front of Olmsted if not necessary for access
- assign first aid and CPR trained "floor wardens" to help in emergency situations
- plant blue and white flowers at campus entrance to bloom all summer

- use Exxon Fleet Cards on college vehicles to get a discount when purchasing gas off campus
- provide a space dedicated to displaying student art, with publicity and opening receptions
- overcoming "Hollowed Collegiality" to have faculty work together to improve teaching and the undergraduate experience
- using the Patriot News "Insideline" to spread the word on PSH
- putting an Automatic Teller Machine in Olmsted near the Lion's Den
- helping support family literacy through volunteering
- keep departments

open for longer evening hours when needed to better serve our student body, and to be more "student friendly" in general

- move "Lost and Found" to the library because of the extended hours of operations

The contest seems to be working.

"You know what the secret is?" Bruhn questions with a big smile. "It makes people put their complaints into positive language."

The contest is set up so respondents suggest how something bad can be made good.

"What I'm trying to do is provide a more cohesive college by promoting events that include students, staff and faculty," Bruhn said.

and how he treated his female students. He was a sexist, Malligo said. He was later sued for his conduct in class.

These are the kinds of prejudices that the club is trying to overcome. They want women to become more involved with math; therefore, extinguish any fears related to this field of learning. That is why, Jud and Malligo said, they are inviting a female speaker later on in the semester.

Jud, on the other hand, has had favorable experiences with math, yet she doesn't doubt that those prejudices are out there.

Both Malligo and Jud agree that their experience at Penn State Harrisburg has been very favorable. They said they enjoy the club and the activities they have been able to attend because of the club.

The Demey Elementary School fifth-graders with sweaty hands, smiles and a lot of energy shared their feelings on the event.

"I thought it was cool," Taleda Peterson said. "It was fun seeing how they dance and hearing how they talk."

Tiffany Markey said, "I think it's cool."

"It was nice," said Michele Galbino.

David Viola said, "It's cool of them to let us come and learn about their culture."

"It was fun dancing with them," Traci Hulstein said.

Miranda Thompson said, "I think it was nice of them to come the whole way down here for us."

"They're good," said Daniel Nauman, who was glad he didn't have to hold a girl's hand.

Nicole Griffin said, "The dances were fun."

"I liked it a lot," Frank Arnold said.

Ryan Reed said, "It was fun jamming to the music."

"It was fun and you got to go fast," Josh Reichel said. "They had neat clothes."

Nicole Noon said, "It was fun because we got to dance with the Indians and the little kid was cool."

"I liked all the dances, but the woman's dance was the best," Ashley Mieзитis said.

Tyler Raisie said, "I learned different words."

"I learned some new words and it was fun dancing," Greg O'Donnell said.

Mike Brommer said, "I had a lot of fun learning about nature."

"I thought it was funny, but neat," said Jesse Woodrow.
