

Vega speaking at PSH

Middlesex prof to discuss Latino African culture

Dr. Victor Vega will lecture at Penn State Harrisburg at 7 p.m. on Feb. 17 in the Capital Union Building. He is an Associate Professor of Human Development and Adjunct Professor of African American Studies at Middlesex College in Edison, New Jersey. Professor Vega received graduate degrees from Temple University, Fairleigh Dickinson University and a Bachelor of Science degree from Syracuse University. He is a Ph.d (ABD) degree candidate in African American Studies at Temple University. As a Santurce Boricua, Professor Vega uses the historical experiences of both the African and Latino cultures in order to advance practical, technical and emancipatory knowledge and development. He has used his Spanish, English and Medu Netjer tri-lingual acumen as intellectual and cultural tools in the study and teaching of Latino African culture.

Vega's belief in centered cultural objectivity and knowledge that humanizes the Latino and African reality continues to be a significant catalyst for cultural learning and intellectual empowerment. His belief in the centrality of Latino African people has given birth to the National Latino African Federation of which he is founder and executive officer. The National Latino African Federation has been established as a leadership vehicle for higher education alumni and students with the purpose of advancing long-term cultural life foundations, intellectual well-being and economic prosperity.

Four Shadow coming to PSH in February

The a cappella singing group, Four Shadow, will be entertaining the Penn State Harrisburg campus Mon., Feb. 16 at noon in the Gallery Lounge. Those who have heard the four members of Four Shadow perform will have to admit that these guys are talented, creative, zany and basically a lot of fun!

Their style, often described as "slightly irregular a cappella," mixes originals with classic doo-wop and everything else under the sun—rock, pop, country and disco. You'll hear some of the most unusual renditions of your favorite songs and find yourself drawn into the comic antics of these four enthusiastic young gentlemen.

Four Shadow is a crowd-pleaser all around and will be sure to leave you laughing.
