Fall Term Begins Today! 550 New Juniors Enroll

Capitol Campus begins its Fall term today with 490 returning students and 550 new Juniors arriving from all parts of Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

Miss Mary Gundel of the Admissions Office estimates 1180 undergraduates will register. This is an increase of 50 students over last year's enrollment. Housing on campus will be provided for 732, or 61% of the students. Meads Heights is reported full, as is Church Hall. Men will be living in the first floor of Weisberg, also.

You may wonder where the new Juniors attended college before Capitol. The breakdown is as follows: 56% community colleges, including 28% from HAAC alone, 26% commonwealth campuses, 8% Penna. junior colleges, 6% four year colleges, 4% out-of-state.

Men total 336 in the Junior Population. And, as usual, there are only 154 women in the class. The number of women enrolled in each program is as follows: 75 elementary education, 55 Business, 52 social sciences, 7 Nursing, 1 water resources.

A New Look For Capitol Campus

Some new facilities have been added during the summer and some physical changes were made. Of the new additions, most noticeable is the food service installation in the Main Building. The cafeteria line will be open Monday through Friday during the day, while the vending machines will be available whenever the building is open. A new Vender-ville at last!

Other changes in the Main Building include establishment of a large student-faculty art gallery and lounge area on the first floor in Rooms W-107 to W-113. The television lounge has been moved from the basement to Room W-110, while W-112 has been designated as an office suite for several student organizations.

Additional space is available for use by student organizations this year with the establishment of offices for the newspaper and yearbook staffs and the photography club in the Placement Building. Adjacent to these is a newly equipped darkroom for use by these organizations as well as by all students and faculty who are interested in photography.

A new surface has been put on the floor of the gymnasium, giving it a new look. To assist incoming Juniors and their visiting families, new signs now label Meads Heights, the dorms, and the Dining Hall. There are also attractive new signs concerning dogs!

Higher Tuition - More Headaches

Across-the-board increases in tuition and board and room beginning this Fall were authorized as "financial necessities" by the Board of Trustees of the Pennsylvania State University.

Tuition increases include: A $75 increase per academic year of nine months at the University Park campus for Pennsylvania residents, bringing the total to $855.

A $90-per-year increase at the Commonwealth Campuses, brings the total to $840 per year.

Out-of-state tuition was increased $186 for a total of $1,986 for an academic year at all locations except the Milton S. Eisenhower Medical Center.

Tuition at the Medical Center was increased $198 per year to bring the total to $1,200 for Pennsylvania residents. Out-of-state tuition at the Medical Center was increased $396 to a total of $2,400 for the academic year.

A uniform $75-per-academic year increase in board and room charges was made throughout the system, bringing the charge to $1,140 for students in double rooms. Single room charges are slightly higher. "The trustees greatly regret the necessity to increase costs to students and their parents, especially in the knowledge that many students come from low and middle income families," President Oswald said.

"The increase in tuition arises from higher costs involved in all phases of the University's operations.

"I am a strong advocate of low tuition public higher education in a free society," President Oswald continued. "However, I am aware of a conviction of many persons in these financially difficult times that students and their parents must bear a higher percentage of the cost of their education. Every effort will be made to provide necessary financial aid for students needing such assistance in connection with the increased tuition."

No State funds are used in the residence hall and food service operations. The charges there reflect the full cost of the operation, including building amortization.

The Pennsylvania State University is taking steps to assist students in Pennsylvania's flood ravaged areas to continue their college education.

The Office of Student Aid today reported it is re-evaluating financial aid granted to students in view of possible flood losses sustained by their parents.

Jesse L. McMannes, associate director of the Office of Student Aid, said letters have been mailed to more than 4,200 returning and new students in an eight-county redevelopment area designated by the Economic Development Administration.

Counties designated are Dauphin, Luzerne, Lycoming, Mifflin, Northumberland, Schuylkill, Susquehanna and Wyoming.

"We want to give each student, including new freshmen, every opportunity to apply for aid," Mr. McMannes said, "and we want to be certain to re-evaluate any aid already offered using updated information."

Student aid — in the form of grants and loans — has already been awarded in many cases to students for the Fall term. The awards were based on family financial circumstances.
