As the technology has skyrocketed, it seems now you can literally buy anything on-line. As far as textbooks for colleges are concerned, it is just a click away. Lately, I surfed on "www.varsitybooks.com" and the prices were fairly decent. It is the way to go.

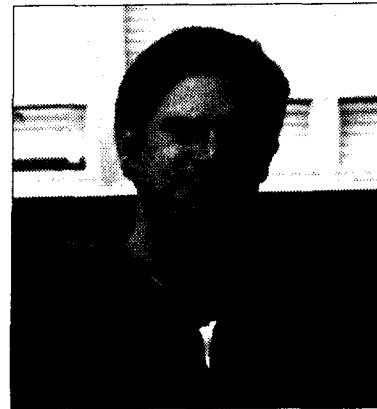

Amy Costabile
Structural Design and Construction Engineering Technology (SDCET)

I think that it won't be too much longer. Maybe three or four more years.

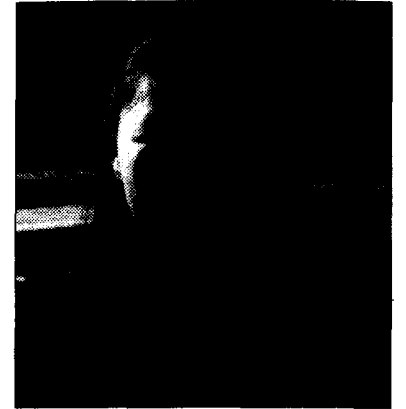

Mike Johnson
Information Systems

Not until the information about purchasing textbooks becomes available for the students. Also, the availability of computers for students needs to be expanded.

Jordan Merkel
Information Systems

I figure that it will be about three years before most textbooks are purchased on-line.

Michele Myers

Most students that know about it already do. However, I still go to the bookstore. But only because I didn't know about it until classes started.
