HYP Continues Initiative to Retain Young Workers

Pennsylvania's best and brightest young adults are living, working, playing and staying in the Commonwealth, thanks to the efforts of economic development and community focused organizations in charge of hosting this year's ImPact 2 conference. The Harrisburg Hilton will be the site for this second annual statewide Young Professionals Conference, slated Friday October 4 through Sunday October 6. This conference will draw an estimated 300 participants under the age of 40 to the Capital City. Registration is available for only $50 per person ($25 for students) by calling The Box at 717-214-ARTS.

The Harrisburg Young Professionals (HYP) has joined with the Harrisburg Downtown Improvement District Authority (DID) and the TeamPA Foundation to host this event. This effort is in support Pennsylvania's broad-based Stay Invent the Future initiative, created by the Pennsylvania Department of Community and Economic Development (DCED).

"Harrisburg is a great example of what's working to attract and retain Pennsylvania's young professionals," said Brad Jones, president of HYP. "The dreaded 'brain drain' has shown a reversal in our area. We previously lost our younger workforce to larger cities, but not today. We are experiencing a rampaging renaissance here in Pennsylvania's capital city and we want to share our secrets to success with others!"
