

Fun & Entertainment

Rain didn't keep the Latin Dance group Chance from performing August 28 in the Lobby of Olmsted

Making wax hands on Aug. 26

Students get caricatures by Mary Kay Fager and Julia Sandness

UUU performing in Vartan Plaza on August 26.

UUU ROCKS Vartan Plaza

An Opinion and Photos By Stacy De Angelo
Editor in Chief

What can I say? Coming from NEPA, I love UUU. To me there is no better cover band. This is the third semester that I have seen them play here at PSH and I would gladly see them again next semester. I even saw them over the summer at a club near both their home town and mine. UUU's members include the vocal stylings of Jason Hoffman, Doug Mackie on guitar, Joe Saltalamachia on drums, John "Guido" Phillips on keyboards and Peter Connors on bass. As always, their stage antics and back and forth insults to one another kept the performance entertaining. Jason often left the stage to sit with students, bring people on stage, take requests and even wish one of the women in food services a happy birthday. These guys really know how to entertain. They played toe-tapping songs like "Footloose," and sway-worthy songs like "Brown Eyed Girl." Their range not only covered classic hits but more modern hits like "The Middle" by Jimmy Eat World.

If you ever get a chance to see UUU at a club, I highly advise doing so. I have seen them five times in the last eight months and each and every time I am amazed and entertained. To find out more about UUU, such as show dates, t-shirts, and bios on the guys, go to: www.uuu.org.