ITALY.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT. Voices from the mountain speak, Appenines to Alps reply; Vale to vale, and peak to peak, Toss an old remembered cry:

Shall be free; Such the mighty shout that fills All the passes of her hills.

All the old Italian lakes Quiver at that quickening word; Como with a thrill awakes; Garda to her depths is stirred; 'Mid the steeps Dreaming of the elder years, Startled Thrasymenus hears.

Sweeping Arno, swelling Po, Murmur freedom to their meads. Tiber swift and Liris slow, Send strange whispers from their reeds.

Italy
Shall be free,
Sing the glittering brooks that slide
Toward the sea, from Etna's side.

Long ago was Gracchus slain; Brutus perished long ago; Yet the living roots remain, Whence the shoots of greatness grow: Yet again,
God-like men,
Sprung from that heroic stem,
Call the land to rise with them.

They who haunt the swarming street; They who chase the mountain boar, Or, where cliff and billow meet, Prune the vine or pull the oar, With a stroke Break their voke: Slaves but yester-eve were they-

Freemen with the dawning day.

Looking in his children's eyes, While his own with gladness flash, "Ne'er shall these," the father cries,
"Cringe, like hounds, beneath the lash. These shall ne'er Brook to wear Chains that, thick with sordid rust, Weigh the spirit to the dust." Monarchs, ye whose armies stand Harnessed for the battle-field! Pause, and from the lifted hand, Stand aloof While the proof Of the people's might is given; Leave their kings to them and Heaven.

Drop the bolts of war ye wield.

Stand aloof and see th' oppressed Chase the oppressor, pale with fear, As the fresh winds of the west Blow the misty valleys clear. Stand and see Cast the gyves she wears no more, To the gulfs that steep her shore.

> For the American Presbyterian. LINES,

SUGGESTED BY THE "PRAYER FOR LIGHT" BY ALICE CARY.

BY MRS. EMILY B. HOWARD.

Sad notes, and yet sadder prevailing, As they onward roll, Seem to my ear, as the wailing Drooping. O spirit in sadness, Through the long night; Wake, to the bright morn of gladness!

List to the sweet evangel-Hear the accord-To us, shout the glad-voiced angels-A Saviour, the Lord!

Though the eden of good, which he gave us, Our pride hath scorned; And we've gather'd instead from th' bleak waste

And, Oh! though temptation assaileth Oft through the day; And human strength naught availeth, Its power to stay; And we cannot feel out, in our blindness,

The law of the wise: Yet He in His merciful kindness,

And leading our feet to our duty, Light from the skies, Will open a world full of beauty, To our wondering eyes. No offering vain. He desireth,

No sackeloth, nor dust;

But only our trust! O, sit at His feet, with the children

Come, and accept His sure promise, To give thee rest.

Nor slight for poor worldly reason, The low path He trod; For though hidden sometimes for a season, 'Twill lead thee to God!

AN HONEST ARAB.

"Scotchman, Xpress, Mercury, fusees, penny bunder-this day's Scotchman, Sir!" shouted shrill-piped, ragged little fellow, at the end of a cold, yet, bitter day in October, as we stood at the door of the New Royal in Princes Street, while stopping for a day or two in Edinburgh a short

"No, we don't want any." "Fusees, penny a hunder, Sir; this day's paper, Sir—half price, Sir—only a bawbee," per sisted the young countryman of Adam Smith. "Get along, don't want any," growled my travelling companion, Phillips.

"They're good fusees, Sir, penny a hunder." "Don't smoke." "They're gude fusees, Sir, hunder and twenty for a penny, Sir," coming round on my flank.

"No, don't want 'em, my boy." The keen, blue face, with its red, bare feet ingrained with dirt, and bundle of scanty rags. wouldn't stand by me, but gave way.
"Give me a penn'orth, young 'un."

"Yes. Sir-they dinna smell." a shilling; so, never mind, my boy, I'll buy from "Buy them the nicht, if you please. I'm very hung-grey, Sir."

His little cold face, which had lightened up, now fell, for, from his bundle of papers, I saw his sales had been few that day.

"I'll gang for change, Sir."
"Well, I'll try you—there is a shilling—now be a good boy, and bring me the change to-morrow corning to the hotel—ask for Mr. Turner."

Carrie, the youngest, calling repeatedly for milk, and complaining of fatigue, she sat down to rest. morning to the hotel-ask for Mr. Turner." morn," was the promise of the boy before he Idu, the second, was tired and sleepy, and would vanished with the shilling.

"Well, I won't grieve about the money; but I think I can trust the boy." "Can? Why, you have trusted him." "Well, we'll see."

"Yes, a good many remarkable things, but not young brimstone and your money." Next morning we spent in seeing the lions. On our return to the inn, I inquired: "Waiter, did a little boy call for me to-day?"
"Boy, Sir?—call, Sir? No, Sir."

"Of course, he didn't," said Phillips. "Did | OCCUPATIONS OF WOMEN IN FRANCE. you really expect to see your young Arab again?" "Indeed, I did."

Later in the evening a small boy was introduced, who wished to speak with me. He was a duodecimo edition of the small octavo of the previous day, a shoeless, shirtless, shrunk, ragged, wretched, keen-witted Arab of the streets and closes of the city. He was so very small, and cold, and child-like—though with the same shivering feet and frame, thin, blue-cold face, down which tears had worn their weary channel -that I saw at once the child was not my friend of the previous night.

He stood for a few minutes diving and rummaging into the recesses of his rags; at last he "Are you the gentleman that boucht fusees frae Sandy yesterday?"

"Yes, my little man." "Weel, here's seven pence (counting out divers copper coins,) Sandy canna come; he's no weel; a cart run ow'r him the day, and broken his legs, and lost his bannet, and his fusees, and your fourpence piece, and his knife, and he's no weel. He's no weel, ava, and the doc-tor says-says he's dee-dee-in, and-and that's a' he can gie you noo." And the poor child, commencing with sobs, ended in a sore fit of crying.

I gave him food, for, though his cup of sorrow was full enough, his stomach was empty, as he looked wistfully at the display on the tea-table. "Are you Sandy's brother?' "Ay, Sir;" and the flood-gates of his heart again opened.

"Where do you live? Are your father and mother alive?" "We bide in Blackfriars W.ynd, in the Coogate.
My mither's dead; and father's awa, and we bide whiles wi' our gudemither," sobbing bitterly.

"Where did this accident happen?" "Near the college, Sir." Calling a cab, we were speedily set down at Blackfriars Wynd. I had never penetrated the wretched places of these ancient cities by day, and here I entered one by night, and almost alone. Preceded by my little guide, I entered a dark, wide, winding stairs, until, climbing many flights of stairs in total darkness, he opened a door, whence a light maintained a feeble, unequal struggle with the thick, close-smelling, heavy gloom. My courage nearly gave way as the spectacle of that room burst upon me. In an apartment, certainly spacious in extent, but scarcely made visible by one guttering candle stuck in a bottle, were an over-crowded mass of wretched beings, sleeping on miserable beds spread out upon the floor, or squatted or reclining upon the cold, unfurnished Stepping over a prostrate quarrelling drunkard, found little Sandy on a bed of carpenter's sha vings on the floor. He was still in his rags, and a torn and scanty coverlet had been thrown over him. Poor lad! he was so changed. His sharp, pallid face was clammy and cold—beads of the sweat of agony standing on his brow-his bruised and mangled body lay motionless and still, except when sobsand moaning heaved his fluttering breast. A bloated woman, in maudlin drunkenness, (the dead or banished father's second wife, and not his mother,) now and then bathed his lips with whisky-and-water, while she applied to her own a bottle of spirits to drown the grief she hiccuped and assumed. A doctor from the Royal Infirmary had called and left some medicine to soothe the poor lad's agony, (for his case was hopeless, even though he had been taken at first, as he ought to have been, to the Infirmary in the neighborhood,) but his tipsy nurse had forgotten to administer it. I applied it, and had him placed upon a less miserable bed of straw; and feeing a woman, an occupant of the room, to attend him during the night, I gave what directions I could, and left the degraded, squalid home. Next morning I was again in Blackfriars Wynd. Its close, estilential air, and towering, antique, dilapidated mansions (the abode of the peerage in far-off times) now struck my senses. Above a doorway was carved upon the stone-" Except ye Loru do build ye house, ye builders build in vain. I said the room was spacious, it was almost noble in its proportions. The walls of pannelled oak sadly marred, a massive marble mantel-piece of cunning carving, ruthlessly broken and disfigured, enamelled tiles around the fire-place, once representing some Bible story, now sore despoiled and cracked, and the ceiling festooned with some anique fruit and flowers, shared in the general Vandal wreck. With the exception of a broken hair, furniture there was none in that stifling den. Its occupants, said the surgeon, whom I found at the sufferer's bed, were chiefly of our cities' pests, and the poor lad's stepmother-who had taken him from the ragged school that she might drink of his pitiful earnings-was as sunk in infamy as any there. For the patient, medical skill was naught, for he was sinking fast. The soul looking from his light-blue eyes was slowly ebbing out, his pallid heeks were sunk and thin, but consciousness returned, and his lamp was flickering up before it sunk forever. As I took his feeble hand, a flicker of recognition seemed to gleam across his face. "I got the change, and was comin'-" "My poor boy, you were very honest. Have you any wish—anything, poor child, I can do for you? I promise to—" "Reuby, I'm sure I'm deein,' who will take are o' you noo?" Little Reuben was instantly in a fit of crying. and himself prostrate on the bed. "O, Sandy! Sandy! Sandy!" sobbed his little heart. "I will see to your little brother."

"Thank you, Sir! Dinna-dinna leave me, Reu-Reu-by. I'm com-comin,' comin'"Whist! whist!" cried little Reub looking up, and turning around to implore some silence in the room. That moment, the calm, faded smile, that seemed to have alighted as a momentary visitant upon his face, slowly passed away, the eyes became blank and glazed, and his little life imperceptibly rippled out.

The honest boy lies in the Canongate churchyard, not far from the grave-stone put up by Burus to the memory of Ferguson, his brother poet, and I have little Reuben at Dr. Guthrie's ragged school, and receive excellent accounts of him, and from him.

CHILDREN LOST IN THE WOODS. The Hornellsville Journal states that three young children of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Howley of looked piteously up at me, moved off a little, but that place, went into the woods on Saturday, to still hovered around us. Now, when I put down pick berries, without the consent of their parents my first subscription to the Ragged School in and wandered about till lost. Not returning be-Westminster, I took a mental pledge from myself fore evening, the anxious parents, in company to encourage vagrant children in the streets no with nearly one hundred others, started for the more. Somehow in this instance that pledge woods and succeeded in finding them. It seems that, after having picked enough berries, they thought it time to return home, but, on turning about for that purpose, they found themselves in "Ah, I haven't got a copper, nothing less than a strange place, and could not find their road or way out. They sat down on a log to think, and sat there a long time, finally believing they were lost. Mary, the eldest, said to the others, "Let us pray to God to help find our way out," and all kneeling there by the log, with hands uplifted, they prayed for deliverance. They then took a new start, and soon found whortleberries pleuty, with which they satisfied their hunger. The little ones now commenced calling aloud the names of the different members of the family: rather stay there than try any longer to get out. "Well, Turner," said Phillips, as we strolled Mary then stripped the bark from a dead tree, with leaves, and the two youngest laid down to sleep. She found that the sun had gone down, and that it was getting dark, and she again knelt down to pray for deliverance, and that God would take care of them. She had made up her mind to stay there the night, knowing that she could not find the way out herself. She knew the night would be long, and the little ones might wake be-fore morning hungry, so she filled her pocket with wintergreens to pacify them—every few minutes during the time calling upon the different members of the family. When found, the two young-lation whose condition places them above menial service?—has long and successfully been solved in France. It is considered there that when a lady goes to purchase a dress or a pair of gloves, a trinket for herself or a toy for her children, she will prefer being served by one of her own sex, rather than by a broad-shouldered specimen of the other. So long as the soil demands cultivators, the country soldiers and mechanics, merchants and artisans, such as only the brain and strength of manhood can supply, it is thought an ungallant and unseemly invasion of the rights of the weak, that any employment for which they are peculiarly qualified should be taken from them. Woman, that finds both her virtue, comfort, and delight in labor, is permitted, in consequence, to exercise it. She often acts as ticket-dispenser at railway-stations, as book-keeper at hotels and shops, and as attendant on the heaped tables of the reading-room. The watchmaker consigns to her delicate touch the finer part of his mechanism, and the jeweller the setting of his costly gems; the wood-engraver expects his most delicate and tasteful cuts from her; and the picture-dealer invites her to plant her easel in the Louvre or Luxemburg, to reproduce, as she well can, the master-pieces of ancient or modern art. Nor is the mallet of the sculptor considered

A young female trained to the idea that she has a position of activity to fill, and work to do, is regarded by the other sex, who have marriage in prospect, not in the light of an expensive incumbrance, but as a help and a gain; and it will depend on herself alone if, at a com-

A UNITED ITALY. All Italy formed into one compact monarchy!or, say all Italy, with the exception of that part which has been left under the dominion of Austria-the design is one which must kindle the imagination of the coldest politician. A kingdom of Italy which would soon compete in population, in wealth, in intelligence with the kingdom of France -what an accession to the great family of European nations! Not an acre of land, nor a single human soul, would be added to Europe, and still there would be a new creation—a new people, with renewed energies. France, England and Germany have long represented the growth and progress of the world; they have been the foremost and advancing nations of Europe; now a fourth would come amongst them, who, in every career, whether of art, science, industry, or war, would be second to none. Every one feels directly that Italy would be a new power; that the intellect of the nation would spring up as from a sleep. Commerce and industry would revive, new schools of art would appear, and, above all, new universities, or universities that will teach science and industry in quite a new spirit. Hitherto the youth of Italy, the youth of the middle classes, on whom the vigour and energy of each coming age depends, has been cruelly maltreated, "cabined, cribbed, confined," and then pronounced to be capable of nothing better than a theatrical and coffee-house existence. Let us hope that France will not be impelled, by some feeling of distrust and jealousy, to oppose and thwart this great regeneration of a people who, in the arts of peace, in the prosecu-

sire to give up the Roman Catholic religion. From all that I can learn they are devotedly attached to their church, and in turn will fight for it. But they are demanding a separation of church and state, and hope thereby to purify the priesthood of its mercenaries and hypocrites. And this is the great object of Garibaldi, the Washington of Italy. It will amuse you when I tell you that in the print shops of Genoa the portrait of Washington is exhibited, and the Genoese have given his name to the hero of Palermo and Naples. They have a good copy of the "Father of his Country." He is attired in his military costume, and his tall, commanding form appears to the best advantage. My patriotism kindled as I looked upon him, and I could not suppress a spontaneous cheer to his glorious memory. The shopkeeper caught the enthusiasm and joined in the shout, and in turn demanded a viva for Garibaldi, the Washington of Italy. To me the comparison seemed an assumption, though I was willing to indulge the extrust in God, sustained by daily prayer, Garibaldi is not unlike the immortal Washington.

In Florence a book has appeared with the singular title, "One Hundred and Seventy-one Rebellions in the Papal States from the year 896 to 1859."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS. Averaged and complaining? Are you out of orderwith your system deranged and your feelings uncomfortable? These symptoms are often the privide to serious illness. Some fit of sickness is creeping upon you ind should be averted by a timely use of the right remedy. Take Apr's Pills, and cleanse out the disordered humors—purify the blood, and let the finids move on unobstructed in health again. They slimulate the functions of the body into vigorous activity, purify the system from the obstructions which make disease. A cold settles somewhere in the body, and obstructs its natural functions. These, if not relieved, react upon themselves and the surrounding organs, producing general aggravation, suffering, and disease. While in this condition, oppressed by the derangement, take Ayer's Pills and see how directly they restore the natural action of the system, and with it the buty-pure facing of health again. What is true and so apparent in this trivial and common complaint, is also rue in many of the deep-seated and dangerous distempers. The safe purgative effect expels them. Caused by similar obstructions and derangements of the natural functions of the body, they are rapidy, and many of them surely, cured by the same means. None wo know the virtues of these Pills, will neglect to employ them wen suffering from the disorders they cure.

Statements from leading bysicians in some of the principal cities, and from other well knownpublic persons.

From a Forwarding Verchant of St. Louis, Feb. 4, 1856. Dr. Aye Wour Pills arche paragon of all that is great in meditine. They have cured in little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that hat proved incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievouly afflicted with blotches and pimples on her skin and in her hair. After our child was cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have gred her.

From Dr. Rward Boyd, Baltimore.

Dear Bro. Ayer: I cannol answer you what complaints I have cured with your Pills betterthan to say all that we ever treat with a purgative medicine. I plac great dependence on an effectual cathartic in my daily contest jith disease, and believing as I do that your Pills afford us the best ve have, I of course value them highly. Pittsburgh, Pa., May 1, 1000.

Dr. J. C. Ayer: Sir, I have been repeatedly cured of the worst headache anybody can have y a dose or two of your Pills. It seems to arise from a foul stomach which they cleanse at once.

Yours, with great respect,

Clerk of Steamer Clarion.

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach.

Bilious Disorders-Liver Complaints. From Dr. Theodore Bell of New York City. Not only are your Pills advirably adapted to their purpose as an aperient, but I find their bineficial effects upon the Liver very marked indeed. They have in my practice proved more effectual for the cure of bilious complaints than any one remedy I can mention. I sincerely rejoice that we have at length a purgative which is worthy the confidence of the profession and the people.

Department of the Interior.

Washington, D. C., 7th Feb. 1856.

Str: I have used your Pils in my general and hospital practice ever since you made them, and cannot hestiate to say they are the best cathartic we employ. Their regulating action on the liver is quick and decided, consequestly they are an admirable remedy for derangements of that organ. Indeed I have seldom found a case of bitious disease so obstitute that it did not readily yield to them.

Dr. Ager: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family, and among those liam called to visit in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion and purify the blood, they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends:

[Yours, J. V. Himes.] Warraw Wyoming co., N. Y., Oct. 24, 1855.

Dear Str: I am using your Dathartic Pills in my practice, and and them an excellent purgatile to cleanse the system and purify to foundains of the blood.

JOHN G. MEACHAM, M. D. Constipation, Costiveness Suppression, Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Dropsy, Paralysis, Fits, etc. From Dr. J. P. Vaudan, Montreal, Canada. Too much cannot be said of your Pills for the cure of costiveness. If others of our fraternity have bund them as efficacious as I have, they should join me in proclaiming it for the benefit of the multitudes who suffer from that complaint, which, although bad enough in itself, is the progenitor of others that are worse. I believe costiveness to originate in the liver, but your Pills affect that organ and cure the disease.

From Mrs. E. Stuart, Physician and Midwife, Boston. I find one or two large doses if your Pills, taken at the proper time, are excellent promotives of the natural secretion when wholly or partially suppressed, and also very effectual to cleanse the stomach and expel worms. They are so much the best physic we have, that I recommend no other to my patients. From the Rev. Dr. Hawkes of the Methodist Enis, Church.

From the Rev. Dr. Hawkes, of the Methodist Epis. Church.
Pulaski Hsuse, Savannah, Ga., Jan. 6, 1856.

Honored Sir:* I should be unfrateful for the relief your skill has brought me, if I did not report my case to you. A cold settled in my limbs, and brought on excretiating neuralgic points, which ended in chronic rheumatism. Natwithstanding I had the best of physicians, the disease grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of your excellent agent in Baltimore, Dr. Mackenzie, I tried your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By persevering in the use of them, I am now entirely well.

Senate Chamber, Baton Rouge, La., 5 Dec. 1855.

Dr. Ayer: I have been entirely cured, by your Pills, of Kheumas to Gout—a painful disease that had afflicted me for years.

It was painful to look upon her emaciated frame and it was painted to look upon her emacuted name and distressed countenance. Feeling quite satisfied that no medicine could restore her to health, we (i. e., Dr. Dawson and Mr. Kincaid) thought only of affording some temporary relief, and gave her about one-third of a bottle of your expectorant. One week after, her husband came for more, and informed us that, for the first time in eight years she had slept sweetly. In one month and a half she was entirely restored, and has increased nearly one-fifth in weight. Our sister, you recollect, took your ALTERATIVE for a

BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS. AIMSVILLEE, VA., Jan. 1st, 1858.

Dr. D. Jayne—Dear Sir; In the year 1840, I was in very bad health, which I attributed to teaching school in the previous year. I was attacked with hemorrhage (BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS,) but after using one name (BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS,) but after using one bottle of your expectorant, I was relieved, and have not had an attack since. I have also given the same medicine to children for the whooping coven, and have always found it to be of great advantage in mitigating the disease, and finally effecting a cure.
