Death of Horace Holden.—One of our most valued Christian citizens and friends, Horace Holden, Esq., died after a brief illness, on Tuesday morning last, in the 70th year of his age. They are most powerful in the older classess which have been longest in College. This fact speaks for itself in regard to the moral influence of College life on young men. Hard Times in the West.—The Chicago correspondent of the Independent gives the following but five of them were wounded. He spoke of a lad gloomy view of affairs at the West. We do not know whether it is more true of the particular churches and institutions for which he speaks than

"Christians at the East can have little idea of the straits to which the professors in our colleges and theological seminaries, as well as our pastors, are nut by these hard times. The Southern market is closed, produce is almost worthless, taxes are high and will yet be higher; the more land a man owns the poorer he may be, and the majority of the people are in debt and compelled to pay ruinous rates of interest. Some of the ablest churches in our State have resorted to deacon meetings, because they had become involved in debt to their pastors and felt compelled to part with them, and husband future resources in order to pay arrears. It is a sad and depressing state of things when, throughout the West, colleges, theological seminaries and churches are compelled to entertain the question of disband-

A correspondent of the Methodist, speaking of Western Virginia. says:-"Some of our brethren have been thrown into jail, as the venerable father Green, an itinerant of some fifty years, and the patriarch of our Conference, and Jeremiah Hare, one of the purest and humblest men who ever stood up in a pulpit, and who was taken over the mountains and kept in a common jail over four months hefore he managed to escape. Others have been waylaid and shot at by roving bands of desperadoes, often parting with their families as if forever, when they. went to some parts of their work. Others have had everything they possessed taken from them and destroyed, and their wives and children turned out into the wilderness, naked and hungry in the midst of winter. Others who escaped in time found work and refuge in adjoining districts and Conferences. Some of our brethren are officers, and five of them chaplains in the Union army. Irreligion and Mormonism at the Sandwich Islands.—Mr. Alexander, of the Sandwich Islands nission, wrote from Wailuku, December 23, that a large weekly newspaper, the Hoka Pakifika (Pacific Star) had lately sprung into existence, advocating the cause of infidelity and immorality. He adds: 'There is also a renewed stir in the ranks of the Mormons. The new apostle of their cause is a Captain Gibson, aided by a young man from Northampton, Mass. It was suspected, for a while, that Gibson was leagued with some privateers; but the opinion is now gaining ground that he is indeed an agent of Brigham Young, and that the Mormons of Salt Lake meditate an attack upon the Islands, which they intend to seize and hold as a more pleasant home than Utah."

The Embassy sent to Madagascar by the Governor of Mauritius, to present the congratulations of the British Government to Radama II. on his accession to the throne, has returned, and in their report they say: "The members of the mission had many opportunities of contrasting the state of the country during the rule of King Radama, and that existing only six months ago. It was imagined that Christianity had been entirely suppressed, but now Christians are to be found in all parts of the capital, and already a school has been established under the special patronage of the king, and for the short time it has been in existence appears wonderfully prosperous. > Strife About a Church Edifice. -- Rev. Mr. Jessup, missionary at Beirut, writes in regard to a church edifice which the Protestants of Ain Zehalty lately occupied, and from which all the idolatrous paraphernalia had been removed:

"Since the old church edifice in Ain Zelatty passed into the hands of the Protestants desperate efforts have been made to wrest it som them, and restore it to the Greek Catholic community, who now number only a very small minority in the village. Army and Navy. Religion on the Battle-field.—A young man from Chicago who was at Cairo on the arrival of the wounded from Fort Donelson, related a number of interesting incidents at the Cincinnati Businessmen's prayer-meeting. That company were in the thickest of the battle, and fought bravely-and yet

In the battle his arm was shot off close to his shoulder. He was seen sitting, leaning against a tree, and as the tide of life was ebbing, from the loss of blood, his countenance was radiant with joy, while he sang the hymn commenc-

"Nearer, my God, to thee." The leader stated that he had had a conversation with the Chaplain of the 18th Ohio Regiment, in Gen. Mitchell's Brigade. He told him that in his regiment he had organized a church of three hundred and fifty members. During the last four months not a pack of cards was to be found in the regiment, nor any drinking of liquor. When he entered the regiment both card playing and drinking were prevalent among them.

A Terrible Explosion.—The 'cartridge factory of Samuel Jackson, on Tenth street, near the prison, Philadelphia, was blown up on Saturday, March 29. There was a first explosion, and afterwards a second and more violent shock, which shattered the building to pieces, and sent the fragments flying through the air, mingled with portions of human bodies. The wreck remaining upon the ground immediately took fire, and the horrified spectators who were first upon the ground, saw men, boys, and girls creeping from the ruins, with their persons burned and blackened, and, in some cases, with their clothing on fire, writhing in agony. There were but few persons who were killed outright by the explosion, and the bodies of most of these were blown to fragments. Heads, legs and powder have both been too great. This will be rearms were hurled through the air, and in some instances were picked up hundreds of feet from the scene. Portions of flesh, brains, limbs, entrails, etc., were found in the yards of houses, on roofs and in the adjacent streets, The walls of several houses in the vicinity had blood upon them where the fragments of the bodies had struck.

About seventy persons have been badly burned or bruised by this accident. Some of them cannot possibly survive their injuries. The sufferers are mostly young men and women.

There seems to be quite a lull in the storm of war, Ridge, Newbern and Winchester. Our western fleet tarries at Island No. 10, and pours an iron hail from mortar and gunboat into the rebel entrenchments. But there are no symptoms of a further advance either on the Mississippi or the Potomac have hard work to keep from being dull. Congress is discussing the Tax bill with an occasional interlude of wit and fun to vary the dulness of debate. The President's Emancipation resolution, and the bill to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia. occupy the thoughts of grave Senators. A resolu tion appropriating $13,000,000 for iron-clad steamers has passed the Senate. And in connection with this matter, the following complimentary resolution was adopted in the House: "That it is fit and proper that a public acknowledgment should be made to John Ericsson for the enterprise, skill, energy and forecast displayed by him in constructing the iron-clad steamer Monitor, which, under gallant and able management, came so opportunely to the relief of our fleet in Hampton Roads, and defended it against the vessels of the enemy, seemingly irresistible to any other power at our command, and that the thanks of Congress be presented to him for the great services thus rendered to the country.'

Additional particulars of the battle of Winchester show it to have been a sharp and bloody contest One of the newspaper correspondents, after describing the varying fortunes of the day, until the middle of the afternoon, thus refers to the decisive charge: "Our whole force now engaged was about 6000 men, while that of the enemy was at the lowest estimate. 8000. The rebels had also changed their line and extending both their wings, presented a concave front to our army. They had also reinforced their left wing, and the charge to be made by our right was all important in its consequences. On it, at 3 o'clock, depended the fate of the entire battle. The gallant Tyler led the charge, sword in hand, at the head of the line. The rebels fired from the woods with artillery and small arms, while our men advanced against their murderous showers of lead and iron, returning few shots and reserving their fire. Up to this time the armies had not been much nearer to each other than three hundred yards, unless in some few instances. The wood was soon cleared at the point of the bayonet, our men discharging their pieces at twenty and even five yards' distance from the rebels, and then dashing at them with the bayonet. The rebels fought well, however. They contested the ground foot by foot, and marked every yard of it with blood. Retiring behind their stone wall on the ridge, our men jumped over after them and drove them along in the greatest confusion, and with fearful slaughter upon their centre. was no longer heard, timess in occasional pursts of hail your advent with real thankfulness, inasmu as it brings us a deliverance from the heretofore in boisterous than ever, and sounded like the noise made by a very close thunder-clap, except that it was sharper and continuous.

The rout of the rebels had fairly commenced however, and two of their guns and four caissons were now ours, and though many of them turned and fired again and again at our pursuing host, many more threw away muskets and bayonets without hesitation. Darkness and the extreme fatigue of our troops, however, saved the enemy for the time, and we retired about two miles and bivouacked till yesterday morning.

I can and do earnestly recommend its

These figures are independent of what they have lost, and will lose in the pursuit. The regiment which lost most on the side of the rebels was the Fifth Vir-

Our loss in killed so far as ascertained, is less than 100, and about 300 of our men are wounded. Though the enemy had a much larger force, four pieces of cannon more than our army, the selection of fighting ground and every other advantage, yet all the trophies of the occasion belong to the Union

The battle field after the struggle was a sight to be seen and remembered. The night was dark and cold, After the battle the ambulances were busily engaged removing the wounded. The enemy carried off most of their wounded and some of their dead. The wounded were intermingled with the dead, and their sufferings before they were removed to the hospitals, were very poignant. Yesterday was spent in burying the dead. The ghastly aspect of the field (Tuesday) at Lewiston, at 4 P.M. yesterday after the wounded were removed, and before the dead were interred, was appalling. Some with their faces off, some torn into fragments and frightfully mangled by the round shot and shell, and others simply but quite as effectually killed by bullet wounds. ### The Southwest.

The Bombardment of Island No. 10.—Cairo March 28.—(Special to the Chicago Times.)—An arrival from Island No. 10, yearday, reported the effect of our fire on the Rebel patteries was very serious, and the upper battery was entirely silenced Sixty-one men have been killed, and twenty or thirty were killed on the Island. The Rebels continue to fortify.

Captain Maynadier and Colonel Buford, who accompanied Professor Steiner in his balloon reconnoisance on Tuesday, discovered that the shells from our mortars have generally fallen beyond the enemy's batteries.

The elevation of the mortars and the charge of medied immediately, and greater execution may be expected hereafter.

Respective Positions of Price and Curtis. Reliable persons who have just arrived from our army in the Southwest are remnant of the rebel There seems to be quite a lull in the storm of war, since the well-fought and decisive battles of Pea Dorn and Price, have retreated entirely across the Boston mountains, and are now at Van Buren and Fort Smith, receiving supplies from Memphis and Little Rock, via the Arkansas river, which is now at a high stage.

The Texas troops were much disheartened at the death of General McCulloch, and Arkansas feels the loss of General McIntosh very severely.

The rebels are bad off for dlothing and shoes. General Curtis' army fell back to Keitsville, in order to secure forage, Arkansas, north of Fayettsville, having been entirely eaten out. Our forces are now camped where water and forage are plenty. Our pickets extend into Arkansas, and the rebel pickets come north to the top of the Boston moun-

The Gold Pen remains unchanged by years of continued use, while the Steel Pen is ever changing by corrosion and wear; therefore, perfect uniformity of writing is obtained only by the use of the Gold Pen.

The Gold Pen is always ready and reliable, while the Steel Pen must be often condemned and a new one selected; therefore, in the use of the Gold Pen there is great saving of time.
