"General Frankie" is a story originally published in Harper's Monthly, here re-written and more especially adapted for the very young. The best of lessons are communicated under a guise half-allegorical and half-direct, likely to be very attractive to the young; yet the good taste of such a mixture of styles carried through a whole volume, may be questioned. The three volumes above named are thanks from Congress. The various branches of the illustrated, handsomely bound, and for sale at President's annual message were referred to appro-

We are much mistaken if this does not prove the juvenile book of the season. It describes most graphically the earlier scenes and struggles of our contest with the rebellion, including the battles of Bull Run, Fort Donelson, Shiloh and other operations in the West to the taking of Memphis. The spirit of true patriotism breathes through the volume, which is the work of an army correspondent of one of prisoners at the hands of the rebels. Mr. Rollins of the Boston papers. N. E. Corner of Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, under the management of L. FAIRBANKS, A. M., for the last four years Principal and chief business manager of Bryant & Stratton's Commercial College. A MODEL BUSINESS COLLEGE, conducted on a new system of actual Business Train ing through the establishment of legitimate offices and counting houses, representing different depart-ments of Trade and Commerce, and a regular Bank of Deposit and Issue, giving the Student all the advantages of actual practice, and qualifying him in the shortest possible time and most effective manner for the various duties and employments of business life.

The success of this Institution is unprecedented in the history of Commercial Schools. Its patronage already equals that of the oldest Institutions in the city, and is rapidly increasing. Course of Instruction unsurpassed, and may be accomplished in one-half the time usually spent in other Institutions, in consequence of an entirely new management, and the adoption of the new practical system. FUEL!

FRANCIS FALLS, No. 539 Race Street, Invites the attention of the public to the great saving of fuel by the use of his heating apparatus. He guaranties to heat the main building of a large house by one of his Air-tight Gas-consuming Pertable Heaters, with a consumption of coal not exceeding three tons in the season. He invites the public to test this assertion, for should it fail, he will forfeit the expenses. It is also well adapted for the heating of churches and stores. His long experience in the trade has enabled him to combine practically the different heating apparatus into the above simple arrangement, and of its efficiency he can furnish innumerable references.

Many of the old brick-inclosed furnaces have given
