J. In no invention that the ingennity of man has yet given to the world have we a more striking illustration of the old and sound proverb, "Peace hath her victories, no lass than war," than in the invention of the which the introduction of this wonderful economizer of life and labor has already wrought is without a parallel in history. A single firm in this country, engaged in the manufacture of clothing, annually disburses two hundred thousand dollars to operators on Sewing Machines, and it is estimated that more than thirty million dollars per annum are paid out by the various houses in this business in New York and Philadelphia for Sewing Machine work, and that the aggregate of moneys thus paid out in the United States annually exceeds the enormous sum of two hundred millions. Under the growth of such statistics, Hood's doleful "Song of the Shirt," we ought to thank Heaven, is rapidly becoming obsolete, at least in its application to our own country. In reading over a carefully prepared record of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Oompany, whose immense manufactory is located at Bridge-port, Connecticut, and whose business office and sales-rooms in this city are located at 704 Chestnut street, we were amazed to find the almost fabulous proportions to which the business of this company has grown. It is but fifteen years since they commenced operations, and, after seadily increasing their producing facilities from year to year, their number of machines manufactured in 1863 alone amounted to over fifty thousand. Notwithstanding this, they still find it impossible to meet the constantly increasing demand. It may safely be predicted also that the sales of the Wheeler & Wilson Machines for some years to come must increased n geometrical progression. Five thousand of these machines, for example, are now in use in Philadelphia. Every one of them is a standing advertisement of its merits, which, together with the enterprising and indicious efforts made by the

FOR YOUNG MEN AND BOYS. At Pottstown, Montgomery County, Penna. THIS School was established Eleven years since, by the Rev. M. Meigs, formerly President of Delaware College.

President of Delaware College.

The course of study is extensive, thorough and practical; including the usual preparation for Colleges, and the various branches of a substantial English Business education. The studies of pupils will be conformed to their future vocation, so far as it may beactually determined, or reasonably anticipated.

The Principal gives his undivided personal attention to the School, and is aided by experienced assistants, in all the departments. CECOND-HAND SUNDAY-SCHOOL BOOKS, IF IN Deposition, can be used very profitably by our Publication Committee in the Western States. And so also can old Church Psalmists. In some of the older churches those without the Supplement have been replaced by the later edition; such books would be of use in our frontier churches. Perhaps a good donation to supply the missionary churches with Hymn Books and Sunday-School Books would meet the want as well. But the second hand books can be advantageously disposed of if sent to the PRESBYTERIAN HOUSE, 1834 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Determined, or reasonably anticipated.

The Principal gives his undivided personal attention to the School, and is aided by experienced assistants, in all the departments.
