Says the Detroit Tribune of February 28.

Mr. Hammond held a union children's mceting Sabbate P. M. at the Congregation-al Church. The building was densely packed, from 1500 to 2000 people being present. After the service, a very large number, upon invitation, remained for conversation and prayer.

THE MORNING PRAYER MEETING.

The Morning Prayer Meeting, which has been regularly sustained for several years, has received new life by this movement. Yester-day the large lecture room of the Woodward Avenue Methodist Church was crowded. The prayers and remarks were brief, pointed and earnest. Some of the statements indicated already a great work commenced. One Sunday School teacher had been praying for some time for his class, and had had the satisfaction of seeing every member of it remain for prayer. on the previous afternoon. Mr. Brockway said that one woman at the House of Correction, where Mr. Hammond spoke Sabbath morning, had asked his forgiveness for all her former waywardness, and had ex-pressed herself as being happy in having entered upon a new course of life.

Several instances were mentioned in the course of the meeting of direct and instant answer to prayer, as an encouragement to Christians to labor fervently at the throne of grace. The sentiment was also expressed by different parties, that they were now prepared to lay aside their scruples and co-operate heartily in any thing that would arouse sinners to a sense of their need of a Saviour.

THE AFTERNOON MEETING.

The capacity of the building was tested in the afternoon, the great majority of the audience being children. One of the officers of the church estimated that there were 1500 persons in the building. The interest is on the in-orease, evidently. The address was of the same general character as the address on Sunday, as were the other and subsequent ser

At the inquiry meeting which was held im-mediately after the address, everybody seemed to remain, and there were such wonderful and marked manifestations of God's Spirit as must convince the most doubting mind of the genuine character of the work. We can say, without exaggeration, that hundreds of all ages were anxiously inquiring the way to Jesus, and many, very many, in tears.

The work of pointing sinners to the Saviour was participated, in by the ministers of the city generally, and also by large numbers of Sabbath-school teachers, both ladies and gen-tlemen, and others. Among the clergymen we noticed Rev. Dr. Duffield, Rev. Dr. Hogarth, Rev. Amos Vaman, (of Egypt), Rev. Messrs. Scott, Prime, Balmer, Griffith, Fre-land, Bush (of New Jersey), Curtis, Mat-thews, Chase, Wortley, and Harris.

Let it was for that the presence of a stranger would call out the people and deepen the work. Accordingly, a month or two since, an invitation was extended to Mr. Ham-mond, the Evangelist, to spend a few weeks in the city. Says the Detroit Free Press, "He (Mr. H.) comes to lightful season during the week of prayer, very much seriousness prevailing.—Standard. MITCHELL, IND.—Nineteen persons, the fruits of a revival still in progress, were added to the church in this place on the 19th nlt.

A marked feature of the work is that the people are turning to the Lord by families. Parents with their little children are coming to Christ.

Revivals are also reported from the Fifth Presbyterian church in Cincinnati, and trom Sardinia, Livonia, Valparaiso, Scipio, and Donaldson, Indiana.

For Foreign Missions.—The Foreign Missionary (organ of the O. S. Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions) for March an-nounces that the receipts of the Board for March were $60,000, and that if the churches wat to make collections will increase their yet to make collections will increase their gifts as others have, the year of the Board will end prosperously, and with bright hopes for the future. OPENINGS IN THE SOUTH.-A Beaufort,

S. C. correspondent of the Presbyterian Standard speaks of four points which are ready for immediate occupancy by Presbyterian ministers. At Jacksonville, Fla., a Presbyterian Church and parsonage are ready. At Savannah a whole city is accessible. Schools are in operation, and a field of missionary effects awaits some energetic laborer. At Hilton Head, S. C. a Soldiers' Home in a central part of the village is being fitted up, and the Chief of Commissary desires that the dining-room be used for religious worship. Near to this place are several plantations, which would afford out-stations for missionary abor. Here also is a minister of our church in government employ, who would afford great assistance to a missionary. At Beaufort, S. C. a congregation is already gathered, which the good brother who has gathered it will gladly turn over to some Presbyterian minister who would enter heartly into the work, Here are intelligent Northermore the work Here are intelligent Northerners, who would appreciate an intelligent minister of our church."

New ORGANIZATION.-A church has recently been organized at South Amboy, N. J. consisting of twenty-one members, with two ruling elders, deacons, and a full board of Trustees.

REVIVALS.—Concerning the revival at Somerville, Mass., The Congregationalist says:—" The interest continues to widen, and grows very delightful, more than sixty in the Sabbath school professing to have given their hearts to Christ. There is no undue excite-ment; but all who attend these meetings are impressed with the manifest presence of the Holy Spirit. Most interesting accounts might be given of special answers to prayer, and of the influence of children who have found the Saviour, and who, by their simple, loving utterances at home, are leading parents to Christ, while the white-haired old man and little child are inquiring and rejoicing together.

The same paper has also accounts of interesting revivals in Lowell, Fryeburg, Bridge-ton Centre, and Worwich, all in the State of-At the close of the evening service, and after the benediction by Rev. The Congregationalist has the following among other accounts :- There is an unusual religious interest in the several institutions of learning at Andover, and several conversions are reported in the Academy. The preaching at the Chapel is unusually searching and solemn, and a good work is in progress.— The pastor in Oskaloosa, Iowa writes us: "The Congregational church in three hundred came. It is wonderful how quickly the chil-dren seem to come to the Saviour. While these children and parents were singing with joyful hearts: "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend," "Now I have found a friend, "Now I have found a friend," "Now I hav ability. THE BALTIMORE ENTERPRISE. - A small number of orthodox Corgregationalists, intended as the nucleus of a future church, held the first public service of the denomination in Baltimore on Sabbath, Feb. 5. Their preacher for the day was Rev. John P. Gulliver, of Norwich, Conn. A correspondent of the Boston Recorder characterizes the discourse as an able exposition of the law of God according to Bellany and Emmons, and adds, for the benefit we suppose of all ministers who ever before preached there :--- "Had the law of God been thus preached in the churches of this city, the guns of Fort Henry might have slept to this day, and slavery would have required no legislative enactment for its abolishment. POPULAR CHRISTIANIZATION, -"We are happy to learn that the movement initiated in the last General Conference of the churches of the State, for a more earnest prosecution of their great work of popular Christianization [making the advancement of one people] is labor of the people among the people] is [making the advancement of Christianity a meeting with the warmest welcome. The ministers and churches in their local conferences appear to be entering with cordiality, into the plans of the General Committee ; and prominent and influential laymen are daily expressing their heartfelt interest in this en-deavor to revive the purpose of the Fathers." -Boston Recorder.

Every heart felt the influence of the Divine Spirit. God was truly with us. All present who had not found the Saviour were anxious to do so. God is accomplishing a great work in our midst. There have been conversions in twothirds of our mission schools, and God's Spirit seems to be moving through all the valley."
