AGASSIZ IN BRAZIL.

AGASSIZ. A Journey in Brazil. By Professor and

Mrs. Louis Agassiz. 8vo. 540 pp. Boston: Tick-nor & Fields. Philadelphia: G.W. Pitcher. $5. A suitable and beautiful memorial of one of the happiest scientific excursions of our day. The high character, great qualifications and zeal of the leader, the liberality of private individuals in providing the large amount needed to carry out the plans on a proper scale, the facilities furnishod by our Government, and especially the inexhaustible generosity of the Brazilian government, and the universal co-operation of the natives, with the ample and rich results obtained, join to give the tour the character of a scientific fete or triumphal progress through these interesting regraceful narrative of Mrs. Agassiz, who accompanied the expedition, and who kept a journal of the most interesting events, that we are largely indebted for the work before us; but the hints of the explorer himself, with his more strictly scientific notes and letters, are so interwoven with the wife's part, that, as is meet and pleasant, it eannot be disconnected from the husband's, and the volume appears as the joint product of the two-perhaps the first occurrence of the kind in scientific literature. Of course the narrative is popular and brings in the scenes and incidents which struck the writers as novel and entertaining. Yet nothing is needlessly said; every page conveys valuable information; and the remarkable results of the expedition, as attained from time to time, are given with all the freshness of the first impressions made upon the exploring party. We note, especially, the discovery of the remarkable fish Acara, which hatches and carries its young in its mouth, and which Prof. A. learned, is provided with a special nervous arrangement adapted to secure the efficacy of the strange plan. The volume is embellished with marvellously clear and fine wood cuts, nearly all occupying full pages and mostly executed from photographs. The book is an admirable specimen of the art typographic, executed with all the conscientiousness and good taste of the publishers, and, PARDEE. The Sabbath-School Index. Pointing out the History and Progress of Sunday-Schools, with Approved Modes of Instruction, Examples in Illustrative, Pictorial, and Object-Teaching; also, the Use of the Blackboard, Management of Infant Classes, Teacher's Meetings, Conventions, Insti-tutes, etc. By R. G. Pardee, A. M. 16mo. 256 pp. Philadelphia: J. C. Garrigues & Co.

as we are glad to learn, is in the third edition.

The advances made in methods of S. S. instruction within the last half a score of years; especially the attention paid to analysis and illustration of the word of God, constitute a marked feature in the progress of the kingdom of Christ on earth. It might well be questioned whether the zeal of Mr. Pardee and his associates in this good work, has not put Sabbath-school instruction really in advance of that pursued in secular schools. A charm of vivacity and picturesqueness attends upon these methods which is calcu- it to general acceptance. ated, in the hands of the faithful and competent teacher, to make the Sabbath-school hour the most delightful as well as among the most profitable of the week. Besides describing and illustrating very fully and happily, as Mr. Pardee well knows how to do it—these methods, brief directions are given for every part and particular of the Sabbath-school work, giving the teacher within the limits of a very moderate volume, an unusual amount of information and stimulus in

An earnest, practical, common sense plea for extemporaneous preaching, embodying many valuable suggestions and adapted to kindle a degree of enthusiasm for its object; which is perhaps the surest guarantee of success in the attempt to reach its object. The Phrenological leanings of the author perhaps do his work no more damage than Hon. Mr. Bingham's careless introduction will do it good.

NEWMAN HALL IN AMERICA Rev. Dr. Hall's Lectures on Temperance and Missions to the Masses; also, an Oration on Christian Liberty; Together with his reception by the New York Union League Club. Reported by Wm. Anderson. 12mo. 137 pp. New York: Samuel R. Wells. Philadelphia : John L. Capen.

This little volume recalls the pleasure and instruction given by the distinguished British preacher to the masses during his late visit to America, and will freshen the gratitude felt to the most appreciative and courageous friend of our country and our cause in the ministry of Eng-

JEFFERY. Autobiography of Elder Jacob Knapp. With an Introductory Essay by R. Jeffery. 12mo. pp. 341, with steel portrait. New York: Sheldon & Co.

Feeling, as he says in his introduction, that a generation has arisen that knew not Jacob, the author has determined to leave some memorial of the truly extraordinary occurrences which have gathered around his preaching. An ultra antislavery and temperance man, perfectly regardless of the prejudices of his hearers and using characteristically the severest epithets of that which he regarded as wrong, quick in coarse repartee, and a different method of acting upon the unbelieving world from the ordinary methods of the ministry, he went forth a pioneer of modern evangelism, and wrought a work for his own denomination and doubtless for the cause of Christ which almost Stationer, Card Engraver and Plate Printer defies computation. The Baptist Church is admitted, by Dr. Jeffery, in his introductory essay, to have been greatly changed and advanced by influences, among which Elder Knapp's preaching holds a place "of indisputable prominence." The autobiography makes a really exciting narrative and must attract readers in every part of the Church. Twenty years ago the author left off counting and then he had numbered one hundred housand conversions under his unique ministry.

Miss Warner. The Word. The Star out of Jacob. By the author of "Dollars and Cents." 16mo. pp. 391. New York: Robert Carter and Brothers. Philadelphia: Presbyterian Publication Commit-

The third of the series, in which the illustrations to Bible History, furnished in such richness by modern travel and research, are put within the reach of the young, and made most effectually tributary to family and Sabbath-school training in Scriptural knowledge, and to an interest in divine things. No writers for the young are more conscientious than the two Misses Warner. Says the principal author, in the preface: " My gions of our continent. It is to the clear and sister and I are exceedingly careful in this work to take nothing for granted-and by no imagination of ours does even a flower bloom upon the hill-side, or a particular bird wing its way across the sea." The illustrations are drawn and introduced with the same fidelity to the ends of truth. They were executed by the engraving class at the Women's School of Design.

PALMER. Hints on the Formation of Religious Opinions. Addressed especially to Young Men and Women of Christian Education. By Rev. Ray Palmer, D.D. 16mo. pp. 265. New York: A. D.

The American edition of this series of thoughtful, earnest and timely discourses being exhausted, plates of the English edition were procured and a reissue in this country has thus been effected. It is in fact a hand-book of the evidences, not in the philosophical form, but popular and perspicuous, as becomes the best utterances of the pulpit. Nearly every sort of difficulty felt by the sincere doubter is candidly examined and answered. It is eminently adapted to do good among the young.

DICKENS. Bleak House. By Charles Dickens. With Eight Illustrations. Charles Dickens Edition. 16mo. pp. 540. $1.50 Boston: Ticknor & Fields. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co.

One of the most famous of Mr. Dickens' books, whether considered in reference to the particular nuisance assailed—the Court of Chancery,—the principal characters introduced—the Dedlocks and their solicitor Tulkinghorn, Miss Flite Richard and the other victims of Chancery, the Smallweeds and Krook, trooper George and the Bagnets, poor Jo and Inspector Bucket the Jellybys and the Turveydrops; or whether we regard the plot, to which scarcely a single character introduced is really superfluous-even the good landlady, who at the farthest northward point of Esther's journey with the Inspector, embraces the poor girl, seems to do so in place of her mother then dying in the streets of London; -or the awful retribution which the proud baroness drags upon herself in the very spirit of the impenitent at the last day, calling upon the rocks to fall upon them and the mountains to cover them in their intolerable self-accusation of guilt. Still, the friends of evangelical religion have to complain of the unfairness of the writer in presenting merely such a specimen of the ministry as Mr. Chadband, and such perverse exaggerations of benevolence as Mrs. Jellyby and her friends. The beauty and legibility of the Charles Dickens edition are most marked and must commend RAU-SILL. Mozart. A Biographical Romance. From the German of Heribert Rau. By E. R. Sill. 12mo. pp. 323. New York: Leypoldt & Holt. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co.

The materials for a romance of the most moving and impassioned character are already at hand in the bare facts of the great-souled and wondrously gifted musician, Mozart's life. And these facts form the staple of the Author's work -the most wonderful dawning of his genius at three years old; its subsequent rapid development PITTENGER. Oratory: Sacred and Secular; or the to the surprise of parents, the public, and crown-Extemporaneous Speaker, with Sketches of the ed heads of Europe; his copying from memory most Eminent Speakers of all Ages. By William Pittenger, Author of "Daring and Suffering." Introduction by Hon. John A. Bingham, and Appendix containing a "Chairman's Guide," for conducting Public Meetings according to the best Publishmentary Models 12mg 221mg. New York: vals; how his works enriched others, while the generous, unworldly and reckless man, squandered the wealth of soul and body for the merest pit. tance in return, and how at last, at the bidding of the mysterious stranger, he wrote his own requiem and died-all these things are woven into a romance, which, with some skilful handling, some careful addition as it were to the drapery and setting of the story and not a little enthusiastic devotion to his topic, the author has wrought up into a fascinating work of art. There is but lit tle that can be called objectionable-we wish that little had been omitted. But a lesson in the pernicious effects of over-work, late hours and indulgence in intoxicating stimulants to keep the reluctating powers at work, is most powerfully impressed on the reader.

THREE IMPORTANT NEW WORKS.

THEOLOGICAL INDEX;

REFERENCE TO THE PRINCIPAL WORKS IN ALL DEPART MENTS IN RELIGIOUS LITERATURE.

ALPHABETICALLY ARRANGED UNDER TWO THOUSAND HEADS, AND EM-BY HOWARD MALCOM, D.D.

One Volume, Royal Octavo. $4.00. This important production has been almost the life-work of Dr. Malcom, and no library can hereafter be deemed complete which does not include this work.

COMMENDATORY NOTICES FROM DISTINGUISHED SHOLARS WITO HAVE EXAMINED THE PROOF-SHRETS

From Pres. Walker, of Harvard College. "In looking over the advance sheets of your Theological Index, I have been struck with the amount of labor it must have required, to collect and classify so many titles of books on theoretical and practical religion, and the kindred topics. But, it bears no proportion to the labor it will save others. The need of such a work is more and more felt. Some theologians, as you say in your preface, may perhaps wonder at some of your omissions. But the index is not intended for them so much as for the working elergy, who, in consulting or purchasing books, need just such a guide, and will be greatly helped by the one you have provided."

From Charles Hodge, D.D., of Princeton Theological Seminary. I have examined the sheets of your Theological Index, for which I thank you. The work of Winer on the same general plan is not adapted to American students as his references are so generally to works not accessible to them.

I have no doubt that your book will be found adapted to meet a want long and widely felt, and prove useful in a high degree.

From Geo. R. Bliss, D.D., University of Lewisburg, Pa. Your book will certainly fill a place now entirely usoccupied and will be indispensable to all studious clergymen, to libraries and to scholars generally. You have facilitated the labors of a nultitude of Christian scholars, through generations to come.

From Prof. Hackett, D.D., Newton Theological Institution. I have examined your sheets with much interest. I think well of the plan. The book will caable those who wish to form a library to select books judiciously, and afterwards to use them with advantage. It is not enough to have books in our possession; we need also an index of their contents, at the right moment, to show us whether the information we seek is within our reach. Your book supplies that want. I am sure it will lay many persons under lasting obligations to your industry, skill, and scholarship.

From S. S. Schmucker, D.D., Emeritus Professor of Theology in the Theological Seminary of the Lutheran Church, Gettysburg, Pa. After having examined the several sheets of your Bibliographical fanual or Lexicon, which you kindly sent me, I take great pleasure in bearing testimony in favor of its diversified and decided manual or lexicon, which you kindly sent me, I take great pleasure in bearing testimony in favor of its diversified and decided utility.

This work differs from the more systematic productions of Noesselt and Winer, in that it does not follow the authors' names, nor give the authors' birth and death, as well as the offices, they sustained. But it makes a selection of several thousand topics, embracing every important subject on which students may desire information, and under each of these arranges the authors who discuss that subject.

While, therefore, the work does not furnish as much material to gratify the curiosity of the critical, it affords a vast amount of information more valuable to students, pastors, and preachers, because more available for the purposes of professional life. One who has access to but a moderate library will, by the aid of this work, seldom fail to find important niaterial for his purpose, and I cannot doubt it will meet a cordial reception from those whose benefit it contemplates.

Through our system of supplying Clubs throughout the country, consumers in all parts of the United States can receive their Tess at the same prices (with the small additional expense of transportation), as though they bought them at our warehouses in the city. Some parties inquire of us how they shall proceed to get up a Club. The answer is simply this: Let each person wishing to Join in a Club say how much Tea or Coffee he wants, and select the kind and price from our Price List, as published in the paper or in our circulars. Write the names and amounts plainly on the list, and when the Club is complete send it by mail, and we will put up each party's goods in separate packages, and mark the name upon them, with the cost, so there need be no confusion in their distribution—each party getting exactly what he orders, and no more. The cost of transportation the members can divide equitably among themselves.

The funds to 1 ay for the goods ordered can be sent by drafts on New York by Post Office money orders, or by Express, as may suit the convenience of the Club. Or, if the amount ordered exceed thirty dollars we, will, if desired, send the goods by express, to "collect on deliyery."

Hereafter we will send a complimentary package to the party thirty dollars we will, it desired, send the goods by express, to "collect on delivery."

Hereafter we will send a complimentary package to the party getting up tile Club. Our profits are small, but we will be as liberal as we can afford. We send no complimentary packages for Clubs of less than $30. N. B.—All villages and towns where a large number reside, by clubbing together, can reduce the cost of their Teas and Coffees about one-third, besides the Express charges, by sending directly to "The Great American Tea Company."
