The History of the Great Republic, considered from a Christian Stand-point. By Jesse T. Peck, D.D. With thirty-four fine steel portraits. 8vo. 710 pp. Sold by subscription only. New York: Broughton & Wyman.

To most historians, the religious element is incidental rather than essential to the course of events of which they treat. They do not write with any leading purpose to exhibit the divine order and spiritual issues of events. "God in History" is not their motto. The human view of events is indeed rich and full of the most intense interest, but it is partial, inadequate, and leads to wrong generalizations. Especially does the history of our own country need to be written from a high, spiritual point of view. In its origin and early struggles, in the career through which it has been led, in the freedom of conscience which it guarantees, in the vast development of religious influences and institutions within its boundaries, and its extraordinary influence over the masses of the world's population, we see more than ordinary claims for the treatment of its history from a positively religious point of view. With great modesty, yet with no less zeal and painstaking, Dr. Peck has undertaken this new and great enterprise, and has achieved an encouraging measure of success. Everywhere, without affectation or cant and in a philosophic temper, the Divine purposes are devoutly recognized. A continuous narrative, or a complete work of the historian's art has not been attempted, as we think it will and must be—but rather a succession of views of different epochs, affording opportunity to the author to illustrate his idea of the presence of God in our history. The volume comes down to the close of the rebellion and the beginning of measures for reconstruction, and is very hopeful in tone. One cannot help suspecting that it would be less so if it covered the period of futile attempt and cowardly reaction in high places, through which we are now passing. The steel portraits are of great elegance, the larger ones especially, and the whole execution of this large volume is quite a triumph to the publishers.

Mrs. Stowe. The Chimney Corner. By Christopher Crowfield, author of "Hobbs and Home Papers," and "Little Fairies." 16mo. 311 pp. Boston: Ticknor & Fields. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co.

The original matter of Tishchenorff's Treatise, known to us by the interrogative title: "When were our Gospels Written?" has been more than doubled in this edition. Learned notes have been added at the end, and the preface matter contains a brief account of the present appearance of the author, by Mr. Gage, and an answer to some of the unbelieving sneers raised by his earlier editions in Germany, by the author. It is one of the most important additions to our apologetic literature and is brief enough to be read by every one.

BECKER. Norwood; or, Village Life in New England. By Henry Ward Beecher. From the New York Ledger. 12mo. 649 pp. $1.50. New York: Charles Scribner & Co. Philadelphia: Presbyterian Publication Committee. $1.50. For sale at the Presbyterian Book Store.

Mr. Beecher has been charged with unclerical conduct in writing a novel. He might plead that many clergymen have written novels, that even the Parables are not just matter-of-fact; he probably would say that he has never been very much concerned about being either clerical or unclerical; we think that the safest defence would be to deny the charge in toto, for Norwood is not a novel. It is a volume of beautiful thoughts and suggestive sayings, a household or rather a townful of exquisitely drawn characters; an album of beautiful scenery; an auto biography; a great part of its authors in its graphic portrayal of the New England scenes and characters among which his life, in its most plastic stages, was developed.

The book is more natural, and excites a more healthy interest than a novel does, just because, like Miss Mitford's "Our Village," it excites an interest in persons and characters rather than in events. We feel towards this whole country-side of people as if we knew them; we feel that interest in what they are, as human beings, not in what they do as the puppets strung on the thread of the plot. Such a book is an advance upon the novel, as great as the advance made by Scott from the romance to the novel, from the interest excited by strange and remarkable events, to that excited by events not unlike in ordinary life.

DICKENS.—The Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club. By Charles Dickens. With Eight Illustrations. Charles Dickens Edition. Paper covers. 497 pp. 75 cts. Boston: Ticknor & Fields. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co.

This is a cheap popular re-issue of their fine "Charles Dickens Edition," of that author's writings. The form is handy, the type good, and the eight illustrations selected from those of the first editions, make it especially attractive, while the low price (75 cents per volume) will place the series within the reach of the many.

GRINDING ON THE ARMOR. By the author of "Win and Wear Series." New York: R. Carter & Brothers. 16mo. pp. 362. For sale at the Presbyterian Book Store.

One of the best of stories, freshly written, with invention in the plot and originality in the characters, and impressing the gospel lesson of the need of inward preparation—spiritual armor—to meet manfully the burdens and trials of life, and to turn it into a theatre of service for God and for man. The typography, paper and binding, and the illustrations are unusually good.

THE BIRD AND THE ARROW, with The Boy that Did Not Like Work, The First Trial, and The Best Warfare. 18mo. pp. 124.

THE PET LAMB, and Lambs of the Flock. 18mo. pp. 71.

Two recent issues of the Publication Committee, containing a variety of brief stories, the first designed to lead in the formation of right traits of character; the second illustrating the tender regard of Christ to the young. Both are handsomely printed and illustrated.

LITERARY INTELLIGENCE.

RELIGIOUS.—A volume is announced with the title of "Where is the City?" This is a record of Israel Knight's search in quest of the true Church. Who Israel Knight is, the public may not know, but it is supposed to be the name of a plume of an author not unknown to fame. He relates, in his "Way to the City," his experience among the Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, Episcopalians, Quakers, Swedenborgians, Spiritualists, Universalists, Unitarians, and how he finally found the City, [among the Presbyterians] with the name, "The Lord is There." The author writes in a very forcible and popular style, giving many "hard hits" in a good-natured way. Among recent publications are—Chicago and its Churches. By Geo. S. Phillips. Esq. 4to. pp. 568. Chicago: E. B. Myers & Chandler. $4.

The Bible Doctrine of Immortality. By H. Matison, D.D. 16mo. pp. 96. New York: Carlton & Porter. 25 cts. The Ground and Object of Hope for Mortals. Four sermons. By Rev. F. D. Maurice. 16mo. pp. 84. Small 8vo. Cloth, red.

BELLETT'S LETTERS. Mr. Albert G. Greene—known as the author of "Old Grimes"—devoted much time, it seems, during his later years to a humorous poem, into which, says "The Springfield Republican," "it was his purpose to weave every truly Yankee phrase that he could gather. It is intimated that it will soon be published. A translation of Sainte-Beuve's "Portraits of Celebrated Women," the fourth volume of the Messrs. Robert's "Library of Exemplary Women."—Mr. Bayard Taylor has nearly completed a translation of Goethe's "Faust."

MISCELLANEOUS.—J. B. Lippincott & Co. announce:—Travels in the Interior of South Africa. By James Chapman; and Prof. Pearson's History of England.—National Map of the Territory of the United States, from the Mississippi River to the Pacific Ocean. Made by authority of Hon. O. H. Browning, Secretary of the Interior, chiefly for Government purposes, from data in the Department at Washington, by W. J. Keeler, 57 1/2 x 48 1/2 inches, folded to small 4to. Washington: W. J. Keeler. Mounted and with cover, $8.—Chinese and English Phrase Book, with the Chinese Pronunciation indicated in English. For Merchants, Travellers, and Families. By Benoni Lancelotti. 16mo. pp. 80. San Francisco: A. Roman & Co., Pap. $1.—Life of Oliver Cromwell. By G. Adams, D.D. Illust. 16mo. pp. 268. N. Y.: Carlton & Porter. Cl. $1.25. There is also nearly ready, "Man's Origin and Destiny," being a course of scientific lectures delivered before the Lowell Institute, in Boston, in the winter of 1865-66, by J. P. Lesley, with illustrations.

ENGLAND.—Recent English publications, and announcements are Bowman's Thoughts for Workers and Sufferers, 12mo. 1s. 6d. cl.—Boyle's Ride Across a Continent, 2 vols. 8vo. 21s. cl.—Cooke's Authorship of the Atlantic Telegraph, 8vo. 2s. 6d. cl.—Oliphant's Brownlows, 3 vols. 8vo. 31s. 6d. cl.—Parkyn's Life in Abyssinia, map and illust., 8vo. 7s. 6d. cl.—Leslie's Dawn of Light, a Story of the Zenana Mission, 18mo. 2s.—Proctor's Half-Hours with the Telescope, illust., 2s. 6d. cl.—Revelation (The) Unravelled, an Outline Exposition, 12mo 2s. 6d. cl.—Robertson's Sermons preached at Brighton: First Series, 6s. cl.—Shady Side and Sunny Side, New England Stories, or, 8vo. 8s. 6d. cl.—Westminster Confession of Faith Examined by Good Sir, 10s. 6d. cl.—A highly popular, but very unsatisfactory and utilitarian volume, recently published by Macmillan & Co., London and Cambridge, is entitled "Essays on a Liberal Education," edited by the Rev. W. Farrar, Assistant Master at Harrow School. The Bookseller says: "The authors preach reform in the widest and most radical sense. The general spirit of the essays may be gathered from one—Lord Houghton, for instance, agreeing therein with Mr. Sedgwick, is of opinion that the social result of classical education is absolutely nil. [O!]—The trustees of the British Museum have adopted the plan of the new keeper of the manuscripts, for having a catalogue of manuscripts classified according to subjects, and in which also all the prints of each manuscript will be entered.—Dr. Newman has recently published a collection of his poetical writings, entitled "Verses on Various Occasions," most of which are as remarkable for the perfection of their art finish as for their earnestness and sincerity of purpose.

FRANCE.—A correspondent of "Child's Literary Gazette" says: The French Academy, besides the Dictionnaire Historique de la Langue Nationale (of which the first two numbers have appeared), are now preparing a new edition of their Dictionnaire de l'Usage.—The vastness of scientific and literary operations in France, is shown by the immense labor necessary simply to catalogue the works and objects of interest in the hands of the various societies. The Imperial Library is printing the tenth volume of a catalogue of books relating to the History of France: The second volume of the catalogue of works on the Medical Sciences is in press. The 1st volume of the catalogue of French manuscripts is nearly completed, and will soon be published. The catalogues of the Tamoul, Teling, Armenian, and Georgian collections are in press. The catalogue of Syriac, Ethiopian, and Coptic Manuscripts has been prepared.—Among recent publications we notice: R. P. L. Leconte's De Regue Temporel de Jesus-Christ, an Essay on the Millennium; Le Catholicisme et les Questions Sociales; Dr. Esnassad's Art of Living One Hundred Years and More; "Historie Litteraire de France," by the Benedictines, and continued by the Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-Lettres; 6th volume (M. Pablin, Paris ed.); M. de Lescurie's Napoleon and his Family; J. Tissot's Essai de Logique Objective, or Theory of the Knowledge of Truth, and of Certainty; H. G. Dien avec Nous; plain notes on the Gospel according to St. Matthew; Mours et Instincts des Insectes (200 wood-cuts, 40 pl. 30f.).

The Paris correspondent of "Child's Gazette" says: Our newspaper publishers are becoming book publishers, as if to demonstrate that the newspaper is but a species of book, and that newspapers and books should go hand in hand.

GERMANY.—Professor J. Faust, of Leipzig, has published the 1st volume of a History of Biblical Literature, which is mainly devoted to the Pentateuch and Joshua.—Professor G. Weber and H. Hehlzann have published a History of the People of Israel.—Professor Scholten, who is considered the most learned theologian of Holland, has lately published a reply to Tishchenorff's endeavor to prove that the New Testament canon was not in existence, as such, in the first century, and an inquiry into the apostolic origin of the fourth gospel, maintaining the negative view of the question.—In Overbeck's recent volume, Die antiken Schriftquellen zur Geschichte der biblischen Künste bei den Griechen, in the compass of less than five hundred pages we have the literary resources of all our knowledge of Grecian art.—Herr M. J. von Heuglin has recently published a volume of travels in Abyssinia (Reise nach Abyssinien), made by himself and a companion, in 1861-2. Their route was nearly the same as that which has been or must be taken by the English army in the expedition against King Theodoros—of whom, by the way, Herr Heuglin entertains a rather favorable opinion.—The German Shakspeare Society is publishing, under the editorial care of Dr. Ulrich, a new and revised edition of Schlegel and Tieck's translation of Shakspeare, still considered the best.—In Germany in 1867, were published 2,666 newspapers, of which 858 were non-political, exempted from stamp duty. In Austria, in 1867, only 367 periodicals and newspapers were published; in Bavaria, which has a much smaller population, the number of such publications, of all classes, was 357. In Saxony, the number was 291, and 1,771 in France.

OUR newspaper publishers are becoming book publishers, as if to demonstrate that the newspaper is but a species of book, and that newspapers and books should go hand in hand.
