PASTOR'S REGISTER, for Private Use. Third edition. 4to. Arranged and published as above. $2.75. DUPLICATE CERTIFICATE BOOK. Arranged and published as above. $1.75.

The above is a very valuable series of books for pastors' use, prepared with great care and a wise reference to the pastors' wants, and to the historical interests of the churches. They are most important helps to all who desire to do their In the introduction, a brief historical view is work for the Master with that system which seems given of the liturgic activity of the Reformed and indispensable element of fidelity. The Cer- Church, and the position is taken that, "The tificate Book is so arranged that, like the ordi- adoption of a liturgy is peculiarly consonant with nary check-book, a record of the dismissal may | the spirit and usage of the Presbyterian Church.' be made upon the broad strip of paper which re- This is a very strong statement, and one not in mains in the book after removing the certificate. If the certificates had extended the length of an entire page, they would, we think, have given satisfaction to a greater number. The Pastor's But we believe there is far less of that enmity to Register" embraces a record for every part of forms of worship which, for three centuries, has his ministerial activity, including Sermons, Baptisms, Communicants Received, Marriages, Funerals, Pastoral Visits, Miscellaneous Addresses, Annual Summary, and Index of the Texts, of which the volumes in his library furnish illustrations. All these departments are fully systematized and handsomely prepared for use with the least possible trouble on the part of the pastor. The Visiting Book is designed for the pocket, and includes an alphabetical list of families, and blanks for individual members of the congrega-

The illustrated editions of DICKENS' CHRIST-MAS CAROL is, thus far, the gem of the season. The story itself is one of unequalled purity, pathos, and literary and moral interest, in the range of modern literature; on the whole, we regard it as the best thing that Dickens ever produced. Its scenes and situations are highly suggestive to the plastic faculty, and such as to insure popularity to a reasonably good embodiment in art. When we mention that the drawings are by S. Eytinge, Jr., and the engravings by A. V. S. Anthony, all readers acquainted with the very effective illustrations of the Diamond Edition of Dickens' books by the same publishers and artists, will be prepared for a rich treat in this volume, where the artists have been allowed the ample range of twenty full page illustrations, besides vignettes, and the finest paper and typography on which to exhibit their work. It is impossible for us to choose amid excellence so nearly unvarying. The animation and homeliness of the scenes in the Cratchit family will perhaps secure the most general admiration. Tiny Tim's ride (vignette) and the dead Tiny are among the most exquisite specimens of mod ern wood-engraving. The whole volume is a credit to Boston and American book-making in every department. Cloth, $5.

Another choice illustrated volume, of an entirely different character, from the same publishers, is the new edition of J. W. Palmer's POETRY OF COMPLIMENT AND COURTSHIP. This is a most carefully prepared volume, embracing an immense number of pieces from every age of English literature, with a few translations. We have already spoken of the contents of this volume in noticing an earlier edition. Of this. we need merely say, that opportunity has been taken to increase its value by revising the text, and by substituting some poems of more positive merit than others in the first edition, so that readers will have in this volume a very complete and accurate presentation of the mode in which the courtly and amatory spirit of the Anglo-Saxon race expresses itself. The externals of the volume are exceedingly elegant. The tinted and finely printed page is surrounded with a redline border, and ten of the finest steel engravings, by the American Bank Note Company, illustrate various characters and scenes of the poems. These engravings, though small, and more like medallions, are executed with extraordinary delicacy and beauty. Cloth, $4.

THE FLOWER AND THE STAR, and other stories for children, is a collection of delightful, rambling tales from fairy-land and from dreamland, exactly such as float through the fancy of the child in reverie; not, however, without some hints of practical value Beautifully and ingeniously illustrated. Same publishers, $1.50.

The Quarterly volume of LITTELL'S LIVING AGE, including July, August and September, has just been issued. It is rich in well made selections from the best periodical literature of the day, especially the leading exponents of English opinion. The high character and seasonableness of the articles may be inferred pretty surely from the titles. Who does not wish to know what is being written by masters of the English language at this day, upon such subjects as these: Salem Witchcraft, Apocryphal Gospels, Nitro Glycerine, The Jesuits in North America, The Culture of Emerson, Projected Expeditions to the North Pole, Dr. Livingstone, Faraday a Discoverer, The Earth a Magnet, Great Solar Eclipses, The Acquittal of President Johnson, Religious Danger of the Continent, Matthew Arnold vs. Thomas Carlyle, and many others of the sort? Besides such papers as those unsurpassed historical sketches, worthy of Goldwin Smith, in Black wood, on the Reign of George II., and all the choicest fiction and poetry of the time. We are sorry to note a brief, ill-humored criticism of Mr. Barnes' volume on the Psalms; the dead fly in the 834 pages of sweet ointment. Boston: Littell & Gay.

CHARLES SCRIBNER & Co. have issued, in very handsome, substantial style, THE BOOK OF PUBLIC PRAYER, compiled from the authorized formularies of worship of the Presbyterian Church, as prepared by Calvin, Knox and others. It is a very complete manual of devotion and worship, furnishing a guide and stimulus for almost every occasion when the minister would lead the people in drawing near to God. accordance with the actual state of things in the most flourishing part of the Presbyterian Church, where liturgies are exceptions of the rarest sort. owed its strength to the odious associations in which forms were chiefly found, and where they had been pushed to an extravagant length. Prejudices have died away, and most Presbyterian Churches, while preferring the spontaneous, though less polished voluntary mode, concede to other churches, in their own or in other denominations, the perfect right to almost any degree of help they may wish to get from a "book." One of the very best helps, in voluntary service, is the study of such modes of pure devotion as came from the hearts and heads of the largesouled, earnest-minded Reformers. They are to be found in this book. The volume is strongly bound, and has red edges, being adapted to use as a manual.

Powerful Temperance Story.

We are much mistaken if "THE FAMILY Doc-OR, or Mrs. Barry and her Bourbon," just published, anonymously, by Hour, does not prove one of the most successful books of the season of its class. It is a powerful, deeply moving story, filled, from end to end, with dreadful illustrations of the evil effects of intemperance, brought on by moderate drinking, and especially by the physician's indiscriminate prescription of whiskey as a remedy. And direful and thick-strown as the pictures are, there are, doubtless, multitudes of broken-hearted ones and of disgraced households, who could give bitter testimony to their truth. It is not unlike "Rachel Noble's Experience" in some parts of the plot, and is scarcely the work of so practiced a hand as that story, but there is a bolder massing and a freer treatment of the dreadful facts. We have no doubt the book will do good. Its recognition of the great truths of the Gospel is clear, and it is worthy a place in every Sunday School library.

PAMPHLETS AND PERIODICALS.

BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE for of the Historical Sketches of the Reign of George II. The Reformer, or John Wesley, is the sub ject, and is treated with the same elegance of style and philanthropic Catholicism that have characterized and given value to the whole remarkable series. "Cornelius O'Dowd" furnishes the brief and spicy articles; not quite within the limits of "gossip," but a little raised above the conversational tone of polished and intelligent gentlemen. He writes this month on, Will it come off, and Where? referring to the possible war between France and Prussia; Women's Rights; and a Wholesome Change (improvement in the behaviour of British Naval Seamen abroad) Religious Equality and Unlimited Formulas discusses the serious question of Church and State as now agitated by the liberals in England. W. W. S. contributes a long poem, entitled, A Roman Lawyer in Jerusalem-First Century. The lawyer is ingeniously described as arguing for the innocence of Judas in the Betrayal of Christ. The closing article is on Rt. Hon. Benjamin D'Israeli. New York: Leonard Scott Publishing Co. Phila.: W. B. Zieber.
