MR. FRANCIS MeBRIDE.

Mr. Francis McBride, one of the pub lishers of our paper, has entered into rest in his twenty fourth year, dying of consumption at Prairie du Chien, Tuesday, Aug. 3, while on his way home brother of the late Rev. Matthew Mc-Bride, a former Editor of THE BANNER OF THE COVENANT, and it was mainly through the influence exerted by that sincere and valued Christian brother when on his death bed, that Mr. M. was brought to cast his lot with the Church of God. By a consistent walk and profession, and his many excellencies of character, he had endeared himself to a wide circle of business and social acquaintance. He was ou the point of when the startlingly sudden death of his brother-in-law and partner, Jas. B. Rodgers, compelled him to remain. When to admit of his recovery. By the force of a strong will, and the aid of a naturalstarted to return, wishing to die at home, and among his friends, but only lived to reach Prairie du Chien, where he died at the R. R. hotel. His last hours were made as easy as the loving care of mother and sister could render them, and among his last uttered requests was the wish that his mother would read him that grand promise "to the angel of the church in Philadelphia," Rev. iii. 12.

His remains were followed to their last resting place by a large company of friends, including six ministers of the Gospel, on Saturday afternoon, the eclipse just beginning at the close of this funeral of one whose "sun had gone down at noon."

The Great Medical Mistake Of former days was an utter neglect of sanitary pre cautions. No efficient means were adopted for the prevention of sickness. Sewerage was unknown in citiés; dramage was rarely attempted in the country. Heaps of offal were left to rot in the public streets, and domestic cleanliness, the great antidote to febrile diseases, was sadly neglected. It is not so now. No. 10 sejasod in it. The Presbyterian Board of Publication has issued a collection of Hymns, with music, for Sabbath Schools, entitled 'Children's Praise.' It contains 170 pages, or nearly thirty more than the 'Sabbath-school Bell.' Very many of the hymns and pieces of music, which are favorites in our Sabbath schools, (especially those in Mr. Bradbury's various books) are to be found here, and in addition to these, a number wholly new, or selected from recent publications. The type is clear, the paper good, and the whole book is attractive. We offer it for sale and hope that it will be speedly introduced into our Sabbath schools.

The Preface to Children's Praise says :-"The title of this little volume clearly ex-presses its design. We deem it necessary only to state, in presenting it to the youth and Sabbath Schools of the Church, that our purpose in its compilation has been most sin cere, to exclude from it all those objectionable pieces which have found their way into so large a proportion of similar collections: and to comprise the best among the great number of popular hymns and tunes in present use in our Sabbath Schools. In order to prevent an entire divorce of the singing of our Sabbath Schools from that of our churches, we have inserted a considerable mumber of old and standard funes and hymns in common use in our congregations."
