Gary Stultz ever get that abominable chapeau? Some say he swiped it from Gallagher.

Being a biology major and so having nothing to do one afternoon, I took a stroll over to the gym and chanced to walk in during a cheerleading practice. Man! What mass confusion! Everybody was doing something different. Marilyn DeMarsh was jumping like a sick kangaroo, Diane Fagan had one eye on the door in case any men showed up, and . . . oh well. Jan Jackson was doing fine, though, but of course she couldn't get off the ground. Ho hum, I suppose the cheerleaders didn't want to be on a higher level than the basketball team.

Jet (that's propelled?) Turner and Ross Caruana certainly chum around together lately. I think it will be all over though when she finds out that Ross' father really doesn't own an Oldsmobile.

Good gravy, I understand we are having another Homecoming again this year. I'll probably be trampled by those alums. They were a sad bunch, you know.

Take Butch (old man) Brydon, who will be back again this year. There is a real stout fellow, and I mean stout. His wife, Pat (ping-pong) Brydon, will probably be with him to keep an eye on him. Are you going to bring the new tax deduction with you, kids?

And Kay Powell claims she is going to keep all of her unmentionables in a safe place while she is here. How come, Kay?

The big surprise to me is that "BL" Bemus has finally hooked some guy. I heard her fiance's nickname is Beethoven because he has trouble seeing. And now he tells us! Jack (Dorm Hater) McGraw says he is finally going to bury the hatchet and speak to the dorm girls.

Get out the crutches; Bob Mercer will be back to huff and puff his way around Erie Hall in the alumni-varsity game. Jinx will probably sub for him from time to time. Anne Walsh is the only alum returning who hasn't lost her head yet—neither one of them. Jimmy was such a sweet boy, too.

And keep an eye on the globe in the Memorial Room; we understand Diz D'Zmura is coming back to put her farmer's paradise metropolis (Homer City) on the map. Lou Laube, the air conditioner's daughter, will be back in town. At least she's one person who can keep "her little Joey" from fill-bustering.

Eileen Lardo and Lynn Montague will be back to see if their male slaves of last year are still in servitude. Don't worry, chicks, men are getting dumber every year.

Oh, I just remembered I was supposed to meet Puff up at the pool. And that reminds me. I wonder if Joe Benacci is going to give a demonstration of "How to dive into the pool with your clothes on" this year? See you. I'll be dog-paddling along now. Sorry I missed some of you. Aren't you?

So you thought you had escaped, eh? Nope, I'm a dog, I am, and here is what you have been waiting for:

1. I predict that Diane Fagan will finally break down and give Willy Storer a break. Someone has to.

2. I predict that Joey Haumesser will finally trade in her beaten down old nag for a 1955 hobby-horse.

Club News

By Nat Kobasa

Life on the campus just wouldn't be complete without clubs. Since everyone has different interests, there are numerous types of clubs at the Center that should please almost anyone.

Science Club

The Science Club, sponsored by Mr. Balmer, assistant professor of chemistry, and Mr. Shields, instructor of botany and zoology, has had the support of many students. It is an organization of people interested in the fields of science. So far this year, some of the students have visited the fish hatchery in Corry and have seen three movies pertaining to oil and gasoline. In the future, the club is planning to build a temporary weather station if this is at all possible, and is going to concern itself with phases of astronomy. One of the biggest programs being launched is a scientific program dealing with liquid air. From the looks of things, the Science Club is headed for a year of interesting and educational events.

Chorus

The chorus, sponsored by Mr. Hover, instructor of language and music, has been scheduling many interesting functions for the year. They are looking forward to singing at homecoming and are planning to have a special Thanksgiving program. At Christmas, the students and chorus will go to Wintergreen Gorge Cemetery for a sacred service at the chapel there. The chorus will participate in the service by singing hymns. On the whole the chorus is well represented by the girls, but the interest of a few more boys would certainly be appreciated.

Gun Club

The Rod and Gun Club has elected the following as its officers: Robert Karney, president; Clem McCluskey, vice president; Elton Himes, treasurer; and Whit White, secretary. Not much activity has been carried on as yet due to the loss of their rifle range. It has been found, however, that the club is looking for a new indoor range to rent once a week. The constitution of the club, drawn by the members, emphasizes the necessity of good sportsmanship, accuracy, and proper care of arms. With the help of Mr. Patterson, who is the club's faculty advisor, they will succeed in what they plan to do.

Bridge Club

The Bridge Club, one of the newest at the Center, is sponsored by Mr. Baker, instructor of math and physics. This club, with its many interested members hopes to have tournaments with the Bridge Club in Erie, and with other schools in the near future. From all the reports that members give on the Wednesdays after the Bridge Club sessions, they must really enjoy the Tuesday evening get-togethers.

Cast Rehearses For Production

Off and On the Campus

By Jan Jackson

Your reporter would like to take this opportunity to award some orchids to:

Joyce Gouger, May Schoch, Jim Lay, Barb Kovacs, Bob Heater, and Mr. Hover, instructor of language and music, who took on the task of decorating Erie Hall for the Halloween dance. Their efforts were greatly appreciated.

To our kitchen staff who provided hearty and wholesome meals for the visiting student council members from other Penn State Centers.

To Mr. Milton Simon, boys' phys. ed. instructor, for a well planned and so far, very successful, athletic program.

To our basketball team, that is working so hard to make a good showing on the courts.

Sidelights: Model airplane building is the hobby of Howard Van Ord . . . Sally Stauffer, Jody Borkowski, and Elton Himes are the new owners of the Behrend Center canine orphans, who were found in the woods along the nature trail . . . Ardelle Johnson and Venice Ceccacci felt sorry for the left over pumpkins from the Halloween dance, so they gathered up the grinning orange faces and placed them in strategic places around the campus for everyone to enjoy on Monday . . . Jerry Waterhouse and Frank Cowles reported that the dance was a great success in their opinions.

. . . Did you notice Dennis Polatas' new look? . . . Jet Turner is now pinned to a Phi Kappa boy from State.

Have you seen Bob Yeager's health chart as prepared by Doctors Ray Metz and Bob Detisch? Don't fail to read this startling and fascinating article.

People are talking about: the Behrend players' forthcoming fall production; . . . Jack Rimp and his date, Lil Egnot, dancing at the Halloween celebration; Mr. and Mrs. Kochel jitterbugging along with the best of the students—Which we are inclined to think is one of the most progressive steps toward faculty-student relations set forth this year.

The administration would like to announce that the 419 acres of Behrend Center have been posted for "no hunting." This restriction has been placed because of the danger to the many students who like to explore the Gorge and surrounding territory.

Our new custodian is Edward Petrusch of Erie. Before coming to Behrend, he was employed at the General Electric. A friendly and helpful person, Mr. Petrusch is always willing to aid those who need help. A hearty welcome is extended to Mrs. Anna Zimmer, our new cook.

The last straw: Winter is here, and Mr. Hover is a South Carolinian. These two facts are not unrelated. Any extra blankets, overcoats, sweaters, etc., will be appreciated.

OFFICE CHATTER

By Jody Borkowski

The office staff is now complete as Mrs. Joanne Lepkowski returned from a short convalescence. Very happy to have you back, Joanne.

Mrs. Barbara Dopierala's little little four year old son, Billy, certainly is serious about Santa Claus. He had much fun collecting pine cones from the pine trees on the campus for his Christmas tree.

Miss Pat McClaran has returned from a homecoming weekend at Wittenburg College in Springfield, Ohio, where she is a member of the Chi chapter of the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. She tells us she had a wonderful time attending a football game, dance and barbecue. While in Springfield she stayed with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McClaran.

Mrs. Adam will not be present to welcome the alumni for Behrend Center Homecoming but she wishes them an enjoyable weekend.

Mr. Shields, instructor of botany and zoology, was surprised when he stepped out his front door and saw a ring-neck pheasant. According to all reports, the pheasant made a good meal.

The Return Of The Natives

Homecoming time is here again, and that means the sight of many familiar faces. Gee, what a thought! As a sophomore, I can give you the inside scoop on some of the alumni. Well, anyway about last year's class.

Our big celebrity, Janie Bastow, will be here. Janie had her picture on the cover of the Times Graphic, for the Mardi Gras last year. Sounds good, but doesn't mean a thing. Joe Benacci and his numerous cars, one for every day of the week, will probably come peeling up the driveway, just in time for the banquet. Yep, where there's food, there's Joe. The youngest of the class of course, will be cavorting all over the dance floor, oblivious to all. That's Harlean Benec. Brooksie and Brent plus their horn-rimmed glasses, will as usual be ogling all the women students. "Joe College" Driscoll, complete with porkpie hat and pipe, will take his stand in the cafeteria with his usual cup of coffee.

The double trouble Edelmans, talking as usual, are trying to explain away the double vision in most of the students. And of course, what Homecoming would be complete without that exotic beauty from south of the border, Nancy Elms. Quiet, Smokey. Down, boy, down. Watch out, girls, here comes tall, dark, and ecchh. Oh, I mean Hugh Francis, of course. That gay philosopher, Jake Gehrlin, will, of course, be the cynic of the crowd. The traitor, Don Kazmaier, creeps back to his alma mater, with a shamed face. Imagine, deserting Behrend for Gannon. The idea! ! !

The "Four Aces" are scheduled for entertainment. Oh, I don't mean the singing group, I mean Lardo, Marcello, Lombard, and Kuneman. Renee, the shy one, Mattison, will undoubtedly bat her eyelashes at the more handsome men about campus. Maybe not, she may be changed. Lynn "Irma" Montague has her typewriter well oiled for her new secretarial job. You have to be smart to be dumb. I always say. That loyal alumna of Lawrence Park, Barb Orchard, will sport her fall finery for a certain Behrend basket-ball player. I wonder? Our "Bohemian" novelist, Dottie Parks, hasn't had a book published for quite a spell. Wonder why? Do you feel suppressed, Dottie? And the ever popular Kay Powell, (the over the line kid) is in rare form with her up and down scale laugh. This is a laugh? And last, but certainly not the least, is our own Annie "the cat" Walsh. Now don't get me wrong, but Annie's favorite expression last year was—"We're through, go upstairs and pick out your ring."

So, all's well that ends well, I hope. And editors, please, no by-line!
