Splish, Splash, Off to Class

The long-awaited spring semester has finally arrived at Behrend Campus, according to the office. I really don't like to disagree, but it seems to me that if spring were here the sun could shine down on us directly, rather than having to push its way through snow clouds. If it were really spring, we'd see birds, grass, flowers, and the leaves on the trees as we came up the driveway, in place of the dirty piles of slushy snow covered with ugly, orange sawdust.

There would be a spring in our step, rather than the leaden one we have from trying to walk down the giant steps of the bridge. If it were really spring we'd hear the splashing and diving sounds coming from the pool. The only sounds we hear now are the snow plows running up and down the driveway, and the chains on the cars clinking rhythmically to "We're Having A Heatwave," as they try (and often fail) to make it up Gospel Hill.

All this is beside the point, and does nothing towards changing the name of the second semester from Spring Semester to the Polar Semester

"Fingernail polish on the tables, crumbs in the beds, clothes everywhere except in the closets! Lucky for these dorm girls, Ann, that all men think about is sex!"

Co-Ed of the Hour

by Jill Nardi

Jeanne, Garrett, a miss with a ready smile and a warm "Hello", is our co-ed of the hour.

Jeanne hails from Russell, Pa., where she was editor of the high school newspaper, "The Northern Light." Although there was no National Honor Society established at Eisenhower High, she repeatedly gained recognition on the Honor Roll.

On campus, Jeanne is a business administration student and an able president of the Dorm Council.

Jeanne confesses a "special" interest in the Navy and, when not studying, spends the majority of time left corresponding with a certain shipmate.

Our pert co-ed lists swimming and bowling as her favorite sports and as a member of last semester's bowling league ended with an average of 110.

Jeanne's "A" personality and leadership ability are noted assets to the Behrend Campus.

Behrend Miss In Spotlight

By LaVern Tingley

Meet Pat Wachtel! A versatile and vivacious co-ed who has already attracted a good deal of attention here at Behrend, Pat will soon be appearing in our spring play. She will play the part of "Fuffy", a thirteen-year-old, and everyone agrees that she will certainly do her part to make a fine production.

She is usually seen around the campus in Bermuda shorts and wearing a friendly, however mischievous, smile almost continuous-very versatile life. As well as being an active member of the Dramatics Club and taking part in such productions as "Carmen," she also was a member of the Leader's Club, the cheerleading squad, the school chorus, the girls' hockey team and volleyball team, and to top it off, also a member of the Honor Roll.

You can easily see why this remarkable girl was selected to take part in our spring play.

Administration News

Between semesters a three-day workshop was held for owners and managers of the construction industries of the Erie area.

A gift from Mr. Sanborn Griffin of Connecticut has increased the library by 670 books. A friend of Mrs. Behrend, Mr. Griffin liquidated his library in preparation to moving to Hawaii.

Mr. Alfred S. Brownell, brother of Mrs. Behrend and builder of the model flagship "Niagara," died recently at his home in Rhode Island. His name will be familiar to future students on the Behrend campus through the donation of his model, which stands in Erie Hall.

ly. Her driving interests at the present time are ice skating and jitterbugging.

Formerly of Philadelphia, where she graduated from North East High School, Pat now lives in Pittsburgh. She is enrolled in secondary education, but she is undecided as to what she will major in. She has an underlying ambition to act and is considering going to a dramatics school some time in the future.

While in high school, Pat led a
