

• MEET YOUR NURSE •

By Jill Nardi

Most frequently found in her office in the Administration Building accompanied by at least two students is Mrs. Ella Burns Lilliman, R. N., truly one of the most popular and respected figures at Behrend.

An alumnus of St. Vincent's School of Nursing, Mrs. Lilliman served as hospital supervisor and registrar there. However, most of her career has been spent in Public Health work. She explains that public health has been her most interesting phase in nursing because learning about human nature, different modes of living and being in contact with all classes and nationalities of people affords a great deal of priceless knowledge that cannot be gained as readily through other types of nursing.

Mrs. Lilliman is affiliated with the American Nurses' Association, is First Vice President of the Erie County Division of the Pennsylvania Nurses' Association, and Treasurer of St. Vincent's Alumnae.

Her good naturedness and jolly disposition have certainly cast their spell on Behrend Campus. Mrs. Lilliman says, "I'm never at a loss for company. Practically all day long there's someone in here."

Whether a student is sick or not he drops in to the confines of the little white office to discuss anything from current events to a personal problem. This short, round woman with the clear blue eyes and warm smile always offers an enlightening opinion or a soothing word. One may even hear about those fascinating experiences that took place on her motor trips to California and Canada. Whatever the conversation may be you can be certain it will provide delightful listening.

Plus the official capacity of campus nurse, Mrs. Lilliman, in white uniform and starched white cap, can be found selling books at the bookstore adjoining her office.

An exciting game of 500 or bridge is tops on Mrs. Lilliman's enjoyment list. Also an outdoor cooking enthusiast, she is a lover of picnics and charcoal broiled steaks from her backyard fireplace.

Remember, Mrs. Lilliman, R. N., is always in her office with a remedy for minor aches and pains and sound advice for those requesting it.

...With The Greatest Of Ease

By Grace Rowland

Now that Coach Goodwin has physically broken, maimed, and injured the male population of Behrend Campus, he is starting with the girls. Mrs. McLane, the woman's physical education instructor, had left her wild basketball games and trampoline tricks for a while in order to recover from the mumps which she caught from her young daughter.

Oblivious of this change in instructors, I entered gym class and saw fifteen "blue bloomer babes", under the direction of most honorable coach, straining to pile the mud-colored mats on top of one another. When they were finished, they had a blockade that would have stopped General Sherman on his grand march to the sea. I listened with apprehension as Coach explained that the object of the little game was to jump over the small mountain. My enthusiasm was immediately squelched when he added that eventually we would be diving over the rolled mats. The thought of this reminded me too much of playing tag with a green station wagon sporting a New Jersey license plate, and I chose a safe seat on the side lines and settled down to watch the proceedings.

The girls formed a line, and one by one, they went up and over. Each time around, the feat became more difficult. Finally Coach brought out the small trampoline. I will admit that I am a coward, but I couldn't help thinking that here was where the real fun would begin. Step - step - step - jump - whoosh - BANG! With pony tails bobbing and legs flailing the girls —when they finally stopped rolling—stood up dizzily, either from the excitement or from being upside-down for the last thirty-seven seconds. They all looked very happy and none the worse for their ordeal, but by the end of the period, I was a wreck. I think the bang as they landed was what did it.

CAMPUS COMEDY

Phyllis McLean: "I don't understand that story, but men always laugh when I tell it."
