S.G.A. Sponsors Bull Session

A general gripe session took place last Thursday as the S.G.A. discussed with students what can be done to improve the Behrend Campus.

Cigarette machines were suggested. Since many students smoke, these would be a great convenience.

Regulations of Erie Hall were also discussed. In recent weeks, students have not been permitted to use pool and ping-pong equipment in the evening, due to lack of supervision. A recommendation that someone be appointed to take charge of Erie Hall equipment is being considered.

Culbertson Lounge has been cited as the scene of gross littering. Students are asked to please pick trash when they use the Lounge.

Dean Lane announced that Behrend is expanding; plans for new dorms and auditorium have been completed.

Another happy note is that tuition is about to be reduced from 175 per term to $130.

When people complained that no one ever supports school functions, Kathy Rutkowski spoke up quickly to remind everyone to support the Psi Sigma Upsilon Jammy this Friday.

Another complaint concerned the newspaper. The staff is now doing its best to see that an issue is printed every week.

Dean Lane suggests that if any students have a reform that they would like to enact, discuss it the Committee on Student Affairs.

Behrend Speaks Out on Viet Nam

The current rash of draft-card burning has caused mixed reactions on the part of all. The following question was posed to a number of Behrend students to get their viewpoints: "What do you think of draft-card burning by college students as a protest against the United States policy in Viet Nam?"

John Penfield's opinion is that "It is a juvenile way of answering a question that is of too great a scope for most college students to understand fully."

According to Sally Clayton, "The move is too drastic considering the issues and the consequences."

Jeff Disend goes even further to say "I feel that the students have a right to demonstrate for something they believe in. However, the burning of draft cards is a pointless and immature way of getting their idea across, since it hinders their cause more than it helps it."

Contrastingly, Margie Herrmann feels, "It is a crude means in itself, but they are getting their point across. They should not be punished for it." As for the actual situation in Viet Nam, she thinks "the whole situation is stupid; it is not a true war. Names of the dead are not being posted; a lot is being kept from the public. We have no business being in there."

Gail Holmstrom contends that "The reason the students are protesting is that very little is being discussed e.g. by Congress."

DON'T FORGET THE PSU JAMMY!
