SGA members urge all parties who are interested in running in the election on October 2; to pick up their application blanks at the SGA office or from any Student Government Officer. Speeches will be given during common hour on Thursday, October 20 third period. Campaigning can begin as soon as applications are returned.

Three hundred dollars was donated to the Class Gift fund from 290 freshmen, who purchased the five dollar package deal consisting of yearbook, dink and gift fund donation. According to Jeff Disend this was a record sale--twice as many sold as last year.

Speaking of record-breaking, the second annual All-University Day scheduled for November 5 is anticipated to draw an even larger crowd than last year's. At this date, the Behrend Campus is assured accommodations and low-cost bus service through Seaway Lines. Last year four busloads were taken down to the fun and festivities at University Park, this year the SGA is expecting at least six buses to transport the students.

Bob Michaels, when asked for his reaction to the new freshmen and to Orientation Week procedures, stated in the interest of the SGA, "We feel the all round response to Orientation Week was overwhelming and we hope the freshman class will keep up their spirit. We hope that the freshmen will profit from Orientation Week, learning the traditions of the Behrend Campus and the Penn State University.

CAMPUS EXCHANGE

by Carole Bredenberg

At Ohio University during the past summer term, a highly controversial issue arose when the Administration fired the editor of THE POST, a student-published newspaper, for writing an insulting commentary on the beliefs of a local religious sect.

In his article the editor, Robert Newton, blasted the Apostolic Lighthouse Church on everything from its opposition to luxuries to its contempt for all other organized religions. He concluded by accusing the Elder of the Church of mis-using the tithes of the congregation.

With his dismissal came a wave of protest from University summer students who, while not condoning Mr. Newton's taste in publishing the article, still contended that the freedoms of press and speech had been grossly violated.

Nevertheless, it appears that the Administration will remain unbending and that THE POST will either have to find a new editor or
