

CAMPUS CAMP

by Carol De Arment

"Boy, my arms are sore," complained Jan Puzar as she flexed her badminton muscle. "Me, too," I agreed, and we stood comparing our shabby muscles. Sue Zuck approached us, and grabbed Jan's wrist.
Jan flexed her muscle and gave a S...E... grin. Said Sue, "I don't want to see your muscles. I just want to know what time it is."

---

Have you seen any of the great Zoology flicks? We had one on Coral last week, and the following are three quotes from the poetic narrator:

"Coral seems to defy the sea by impaling it on forward thrusting spears."

"With outspread palms as if to catch the warmth of the tropical sunlight."

"Prettily embossed where the coral animals put forth their tentacles."

---

Congratulations, Penn State, for setting up a beautiful program for English 2. The selections are:

1. Oedipus and Antigone, by Sophocles (Greek)
  2. The Book of Job (Hebrew)
  3. Plato's Republic (greek)
  4. The Prince, Machiavelli, (Italian)
  5. Candide, Voltaire (French)
  6. Crime and Punishment, Dostoevsky (Russian) and 7. Othello Shakespeare.
- Ironically, Othello is the only book in the English course that was written in English.

As George Miller pointed out: Did you ever notice, when going through the course syllabus, that courses are abbreviated into nice pronounceable syllables?
Humanities - Human., Spanish - Span., Psychology - Psy., etc. The only exception is Speech - Spch.

Sign in the S.G.A. office: I don't want to lead the student body. I just want to kiss her.

Doc Smith: "I don't care how you dress, or how Mod you look, just so long as you know the difference between a blastocoel and a blastomere.!"

THE CIRCLE K CORRAL

by Tom Lackovic

Our special guest at last Monday's meeting was Mr. Alden Heath, President of Erie Kiwanis, chapter of Circle K International. Mr. Heath rendered some notable comments about the performance of the Circle K Club at Behrend Campus. He happily reported that our club is the most active in Zone 1, which is comprised of six colleges in Western Pennsylvania.
We are proud to have this distinction which was only possible through the cooperation of you - the student body - at various social events on campus. So let's keep up the good work by supporting our "fun" activities.

A more serious matter was presented by Mr. Heath - Zone 1 had no representative. So, the nominees were: Jim English, Jeff De Walt, Bob Karatko, Tom Lackovic, and Norm Detrich. The ballots pointed to Norm Detrich as Lieutenant-Governor of Zone 1. Congratulations, Norm! We are sure that he'll do his best to keep Behrend Campus well represented at the District Convention in Camp Hill, Pa.

cont. p. 6