

THE DAY WATCHTOWER
by Ron Fontecchio

Congratulations to the Behrend basketball team on winning the Pennsylvania State Junior College Championship. The final game on Saturday night was a real thriller, and if you missed it, you really lost out on some excellent excitement...Good luck in Baltimore.

Mr. Kochel's coffee hour last week was a great success to the dozen or so people who made their appearance. It gives the student an excellent chance to discuss any problem they might have, or wish to talk about. At the time, however, the meeting was somewhat inconvenient.

Construction on the new building seems to be frozen for the present.

Supposedly spring is only about four weeks away---for every place except Erie.

Ash trays in the O.B. Lounge seem to be rather scarce. How about it, S.G.A.? Or would you rather have us use the floor?? Cigarette butts on the floor do not add much to the room decor. (A poem)

The price of the juke box in Erie Hall is a little high, wouldn't you say, S.G.A.?

Today's quote to remember: "Kill a Commie for Christ." YUK YUK.

U.N. VOTES ON RESOLUTIONS

(a smashing report by Behrend's hot shot reporter, HI, I'm JAN PUZAR!)

Three Behrend students comprised the Congolese delegation to the Penn State Model United Nations which was held the weekend of the Concert.

Marcie Barton, Ron Batchelor, and Jan Puzar assumed the roles of delegates from the Congo in the discussion of the Rhodesian problem (Ian Smith's ill government which does not allow Negroes the right to vote,) and the question of admitting Red China to the U.N.

In the voting held on Sunday, Red China was once again not admitted to the U.N. On the Rhodesian issue, a resolution that passed called for economic pressures against Rhodesia until the government will allow people of color the right to vote.

If these economic measures do not work, the General Assembly would authorize the use of U.N. troops to bring about the downfall of Ian Smith and his regime.

Only four commonwealth colleges participated in the Model U.N. There were five delegations from state high school! Freshmen who are interested in participating next year in the model U.N. should contact S.G.A. about the middle of the Fall term for information about signing up. Let us see Behrend sent at least two delegates to next year's meeting.

READERS PROGRAM POSTPONED

The Behrend Readers had planned to present a program, "The Battle of the Sexes," on March 2-3, but it was postponed because Reader George Miller has mononucleosis. Apparently he lost the battle of the sexes.

The program is rescheduled for the first week of the Spring term and will include exciting readings from Sandburg, James Thurber, Ogden Nash, and others.
