Behrend and Penn State

BEHREND IS A PART OF PSU
by Eileen Bowden

The scene above is an edifice of what all of us here at Behrend take for granted and expect. Yet for an outsider, the sight of the student body of a very small small campus walking around in the jackets of a large university might tend to be a little mysterious, if nothing else. When you think about it, it's really rather awesome. Here we are with all the advantages of attending a small college, with the unique atmosphere only Behrend could have, and above and beyond this we have all the advantages of attending a large university. In the same light through the commonwealth campus system, we get the experience of both small-campus life and the anonymousness and excitement of living on a large campus. One thing that gives the campus PSU'ers a glimpse of just what the life is down state is All-U Day. In the past, when overnight housing was available for the furthest away campuses (like us Behrendites), we would leave early on a Saturday morning, arrive at main campus in time for the afternoon football game. The game was followed by a banquet, riotous jammy and a concert. All of which was followed by numerous activities. Behrend is PSU.
