the Undergraduate Student Government (USG) last term which delegated to OSGA the authority to elect the Commonwealth Campus representative to the Faculty Senate Committee on Student Affairs. Also approved were general guidelines for student courts on all of the branch Commonwealth Campuses. The purpose of these guidelines, according to Robert Bauer, OSGA president, is to provide continuity for all Commonwealth Campus student courts. Campuses establishing courts must follow the basic structure adopted by the OSGA.

Jeff Long, USG president, addressed the first general session. During his speech Long emphasized that both USG and CSGA had common problems. He suggested that cooperation between the two groups would aid in solving major issues such as Senate representation, the tuition hike and the recently instituted pass-fail grading system.

Charles L. Lewis, vice-president for student affairs, as after-dinner session of the delegates. He said, "The role of student government is changing rapidly, it will accelerate as your campus grows."

FACULTY CONTINUES STUDENT DOMINATION

In what has to be the biggest upset since Johnson beat Goldwater in 1964, the faculty basketball team raised the roof of Erie Hall with a stunning 77-66 win over the Nittany Cub All-Stars Friday night. It was the umpteenth time that the faculty had emerged victorious, but this victory was not achieved without a hard struggle from the taller All-stars.

The game started off like a runaway for the Cub team. Led by the outside shooting of Mike Kosares and the inside work of Doug Brower, plus some strong defensive work, the All-stars jumped out to a 26-8 lead midway through the first half. But then the teachers got hot and with layups by Doc White and Mr. Iobst, plus a few free throws by assorted faculty-members, they had cut the gap to 28-18 by half-time. The highlight of the first half came with 2:52 to play when Dr. Masteller who was to be a demon on the bench all evening, threw 973 plastic styro-foam thingamajigs onto the gym floor, causing two important results: a. a time-out b. a mess.

After an elaborate half-time show, which featured trick-shooting by the referees and reception of water by the players, the teams took the floor for what proved to be a decisive second half. It was at this time that the highest scoring member of the profs made his presence felt, Mr. Bedford, the scorekeeper. Countless times during the second period, when it appeared that the All-stars would pull away, the engineering teacher would flick a button, and poof--five points would be added to the faculty total. As proof of their superiority, the faculty wanted to end the game about three minutes early, but justice prevailed and the teachers were persuaded to come back and finish the game.

Several awards were meted out to the players and the huge throng of people present (they numbered about 30) saw the results. The results (cont.)
