

Post-Election Politics

President

Caldwell

The administration is constantly emphasizing the changes at Behrend. In line with this are the recent changes in Student Government officials. This paper, as well as the candidates, hope the changes are not to be nominal only.

Harold (Arnie) Caldwell hopes to elicit more student involvement in school affairs. Next year the students will have the added advantage of a Student Judiciary Committee. An innovation which any student should appreciate. The committee will be composed of six students (not necessarily SGA members) appointed by SGA, to rule on disciplinary action against students. Anyone may have his case taken before the committee with a minimum of red-tape...in itself a permutation for Behrend. This, however, entails greater responsibility for the student; it will be his right and privilege to make use of the committee - it is only hoped that the students do not neglect this innovation as they have in the past. Arnie also aspires to effect a Grievance Committee which would meet regularly to hear student complaints. Its purpose would be to establish better communication and empathy between the SGA and members of the student body.

(CON'T)

Chairman

Lackovic

One of the changes wrought by the new constitution will be the creation of position of Chairman of S.G.A. The first person to assume this position will be Gary Lackovic. This position is comparable to that of Vice-President in the respect that he presides over meetings but superior in that the Chairmen wields more power. It is in his dictum to choose the subjects which are taken before the S.G.A. He and the President work closely and have a their mutual objectives the arousal of student interest and the participation and involvement of Behrend in inter-campus affairs. Gary advocates more involvement on the part of Behrend, its students and governments. He hopes through cooperation with the other Commonwealth Campuses to take Behrend from its position as an isolated member of the Pennsylvania State University to an integrated part of the Penn State complex. In this vein he has already started to communicate with the other campuses to try to organize a huge beach party after graduation, and plans for next years Orientation Week and All-U Day. The new officers, the new year, the new form of constitution - all bespeak progress. With student support all of the objectives which these three officers have set forth. Student involvement and participation and activity on the part of Behrend will be achieved.

Treasurer

Burger

James Burger is also anxious to effect progress. As a member of the Cultural Committee, he advocates more student activities such as movies, lectures, concerts, a coffee house, art festivals and anything else of cultural or intellectual value which may be brought to Behrend. He also feels better student-faculty relations, perhaps through coffee clatches, would benefit the student body. By participating in student affairs, Jim hopes to be able to represent them in voting on issues of interest to them in SGA. Behrend is in the progress of expansion and maturation. Therefore its financial needs are great. Since Jim is treasurer he intends to do his best to allocate enough funds from the main campus to sustain Behrend's growth.

The unifying force behind these candidates aims is the need for more student support and involvement. Each of us, as a member of the Behrend Campus student body, has the responsibility and the privilege of helping to shape the events and history of Behrend. EXCELSIOR!! (Con't from column 1) Hopes that the student activities will flourish are based on changes in the system of regulating money to the various organizations. Arnie hopes that clubs will sponsor activities with the money SGA gives them.
