

BAREFOOTERS

Erie Civic Theatre's presentation of "Barefoot in the Park" October 11 through 20 will be of special interest to Behrendites. Starring as the newlywed wife will be Paula Ignasiak of the Behrend Players while another former Player, Bill Frazier Jr., plays the young husband.

Paula, a sophomore in Theater Arts, is well known for her past performances in Player productions. She first appeared in "Aria da Capo" during Behrend's Salute to the Erie Civic Ballet. For her portrayal of Helen of Troy in "Tiger at the Gate" last spring, she was named Player's Best Actress of the Year. During the summer, she had the female lead in "Bye, Bye Birdie" and also was assistant director and choreographer for Gannon's production of "Marat/Sade". At Behrend she is an active member of SGA and a charter member of Delta Psi Omega, the National Dramatics Fraternity.

Bill Frazier attended Behrend five years ago and was also a member of Players and Delta Psi Omega. In his first appearance at Behrend, he created the role of Somersault from "Land of Counterpane" in a "Three for One" night. His acting ability inspired the Behrend Players and led Mr. Grove to try "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off" in the spring. Besides performances in New York, Philadelphia and various other places, he had one of the leading roles in Gannon's "Marat/Sade" this summer.

Besides Paula and Bill, other members of the "Barefoot in the Park" cast are Shirley Levin as the mother-in-law, David Hoh as an over friendly neighbor, Jim Casillo and Jerry Seelinger. Described by Life Magazine as "one of the funniest comedies ever," Neil Simon's play of just-married housekeeping in a Greenwich Village apartment promises to be well worth while.

CAMPUS EXPANSION

Construction of a new science building to permit more advanced study begin this fall at Behrend under an appropriation of funds by the General State Authority of Pennsylvania. The building will be designed by the local architectural firm of Gray, Weber and Kern, while the actual construction will be determined by the lowest bid received by the school.

The building will be located between the walk of the Otto F. Behrend Building and the parking lot by the woods. It will house two biological science and three drafting laboratories, preparation and storage rooms, an independent study lab, a live animal storage room, six classrooms and office space for fourteen faculty members.

This construction will permit an expansion of the biological sciences and will allow science majors to remain a full two years at Behrend thereby saving approximately half of the college tuition. In addition to this, the Otto F. Behrend Building will be converted into an organic chemistry lab which will result in further advanced study. This will mean an increase in both faculty and student enrollment by January, 1970—the desired completion date.
