You are cordially invited to attend a session in honor of His Highness the Prince of the Village.

Informal attire
Nine to one thirty A.M.

"So that's where she went!" thought W.S. "With out even telling me where she was going!" Hopping on her broomstick (don't worry, it was only a hobby) she made her way to the castle.

"Damn," she thought, as she rubbed her head (she never could get enough altitude to clear that pine tree in the middle of the village; fortunately it was in front of the castle).

Picking herself up, she ran straight into the main ballroom.

"Where is she?" she screamed (it was kind of hard to see through all that smoke).

"Cinderella, you know you have to be home pretty soon! You'd better come with me now! You know how I hate to give you those late lashes!"

Later, at the funeral, (as luck would have it, W.S., poor woman, was overcome by the intoxicating fumes at the Prince's).

Cindy-baby and her friends sat around discussing the events of the past week.

"Well," someone noted "At least she didn't die alone, now, did she?"

Moral: Never attend a Prince session uninvited.

Note: The "Fairie Tale" will be a regular feature of the CUB. No inference to any person living or dead is intended, unless specifically stated.

BALLET INTERVIEW continued from p.5

ical Dance Company and Youngstown Symphony Ballet.

Dom: Would you tell us what you are going to perform tonight?
Statia: Yes, we're going to start out talking about ballet, its training, how we were trained, its relationship to contemporary music, the historical dances, all the elements of the theatre dance, choreography, music, design, and types of ballet. We're going to talk about this and do some demonstrations. A lot of it is interrelated involving the audience, too so it's a real seminar.
