Human Developments Receives Grant

University Park, Pa.—To accelerate its four-year program to prepare students for positions in health planning and health care administration, the College of Human Development at The Pennsylvania State University has been awarded a $462,000 grant by the National Institutes of Health, Bureau of Health Manpower.

A critical shortage of trained personnel exists in health planning agencies at all levels of government, Dr. Marshall W. Raffel stated. He cited state and local health departments, public and private general hospitals, mental health centers and hospitals, neighborhood health centers, health and welfare councils, group practice clinics, Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

The NIH grant, he points out, is evidence that the federal government is concerned about the manpower shortage and interested in four-year programs that can produce personnel more rapidly than graduate programs whose output is necessarily limited.

The Penn State program, introduced last Fall, is one of the few four-year health planning and administration programs offered in this country and the only one that emphasizes preparation for policy planning and administration.

The new grant will permit development and expansion of the Penn State program in anticipation of an increased student enrollment beginning in the Fall of 1970.

With sufficient interest, introductory courses may also be offered on some Commonwealth Campuses, Dr. Raffel said.

Dr. Raffel emphasized, however, that "openings available to four-year graduates are rewarding financially, and satisfying in terms of helping people have better lives through improved health service."

Penn State Ranks 16th

UNIVERSITY PARK, PA.—The Pennsylvania State University ranked 16th in the Nation in the number of bachelor and higher degrees awarded in 1967-68 according to information released Friday and based on a survey by the National Center for Educational Statistics of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Penn State, which conferred 5,626 bachelor and advanced degrees, was the only university in Pennsylvania to rank among the top seventeen.

In 1967-68, 921 associate degrees were conferred by the University, bringing the grand total of degrees awarded that year to 6,547.

Other statistics compiled by the Center showed Pennsylvania ranking third behind New York and California in the number of bachelor and higher degrees granted in 1967-68 and seventh in degrees awarded below the baccalaureate level.

Penn State far outranked all other universities in the Commonwealth in total degrees granted in 1968-69, according to a State Department of Education report.

The University conferred 7,996 degrees—5,560 bachelors, 1,137 masters, 344 doctorates, and 955 associates.

Penn State led in the number of associate and bachelor degrees granted but ranked behind Temple, Pitt, and Penn in master's degrees and behind Penn in doctorates.

Music Workshop Planned At U.P.

UNIVERSITY PARK, PA.—A special symphonic music workshop will be held at The Penn. State University this summer aimed at giving students the chance to learn and perform with professional musicians under professional conditions.

Sponsored by the Department of Music, the workshop is scheduled from June 21 to July 3 and will bring together some of the nation's leading orchestra personnel.

"Our mornings and afternoons will be devoted to coaching sessions and rehearsals, with evenings set aside for orchestral and chamber music programs," says Robert W. Baisley, professor and head of the Department of Music.

"We feel that the workshop will be a most rewarding experience for those who take part and will enable students to advance a great deal in their studies toward a professional career," Dr. Baisley says.

SGA Passes W Bill

The Student Government Association of the Behrend Campus will submit a recommendation to the Director of the Campus, Irvin H. Kocheil, that the campus disciplinary boards refer all cases which are involved with civil authorities to the civil authorities. The recommendation, which also covers censorship of publications was passed by the SGA at their Wednesday night meeting by a vote of 20-2.

The bill of recommendation was drawn up as a result of an SGA survey of the students' feelings on the subject. The SGA statement concerning Rule W-11, which covers University involvement in civil law states: "As the situation now stands, if a student were to be apprehended by the University officials, he is subject to disciplinary action by the University, but he is not necessarily subject to disciplinary action by the Civil authorities. Whereas, if a student's case were to be processed by civil authorities for breaches of civil law, the University (Behrend Campus) could also charge this student with actions of unethical, immoral, dishonest, or destructive behavior for the same violation. The University (Behrend Campus) should limit itself to university-related areas, leaving the civil authorities solely responsible for violations of civil law. In the cases where the two areas of jurisdiction were to overlap, the civil

Man Nobody Saw To Be Presented

The Man Nobody Saw is a one-act play that will be presented Monday, March 2 at 8:30 p. m. in the Lecture Room of the Reed Union Building. The play is produced by the Christian Associates of Metropolitan Erie, an organization which strives to present a picture of black-white relationships in the United States today. The Man Nobody Saw is a black man. Do we really know and understand the problems he faces today?

The Behrend Faculty Women and Wives Group offers this opportunity to the public, and especially to students to view and discuss the issues of the performance. There will be no admission charge. Just come, see, listen, think and discuss with us.

College Bowl Competition In The RUB Next Week

Next week eight teams composed of resident hall students of Behrend will match brains in a college bowl competition similar to the College Bowl show which appears on television. Each resident hall will have four teams.

The competition which originated at Main Campus included forty teams, but because it is something new at Behrend and the number of questions is somewhat limited, the halls were limited to four teams each. However if enough interest is generated, the number of teams could be increased for next year's competition.

The method of choosing the team members was left entirely up to the resident students. Each team consists of four members and two alternates. The questions that will be asked were made up by faculty members. Faculty members will also serve as moderators, judges and scorers. Rules

Addition Scheduled For July Completion

by Chuck Varesko

The newest addition to the educational facilities of the Behrend Campus, the classroom/laboratory building was 44% complete as of February 12. Construction is behind schedule as 58% of the proposed construction time has elapsed. The delay is due to the severe winter weather. Temporary gas heat has been installed to heat and dry-out the building. The original completion date, July 15, 1970, has been extended to July 26, 1970. The exterior, including the roof is expected to be completed by mid-March, allowing work to begin on the interior.

Also in March, bids will be opened on the construction of a new residence hall and a Food service building, which will be situated on the hill behind the present dorms. The new residence hall will be identical to the Niagara Hall. The completion date for the dormitory has not been set, but the food service building is expected to be completed by September, 1971.

Readers Present Friendship Theme

The Behrend Readers will once again entertain the students of Behrend Campus on March 5, in the Reed Lecture Hall.

The program, "I Need All the Friends I Can Get", revolves completely around the theme of friendship. In planning this program, the Readers decided to show four different aspects of friendship that one may possess.

The readings come from material of a variety of authors. Some of these are Rod McKuen, Dorothy Quick, Alexander Woolcott and William Makepeace Thackeray.

Mrs. Falkenhagen, the Readers—Paige Jeffrey, Charly Lee, Mark Moffett, Denise Mula, Jeff Whitt, and members of Speech classes 200 and 208—Elizabeth Boyle, Thomas Clarke, Robin Dile, Sandra Kasko, Elsie Levy and Leslie Rossin have worked hard to present a humorous and touching program for the students. There is something for everyone. After all, everyone needs a friend.

Remember, March 5, at 8:00 p.m. in the Lecture Hall, no admission.
