DEAR CHARLY

(Anyone having a question on anything, please send your question to Charly Lee, c/o Publications Office, Reed Union Building, Behrend Campus.)

Dear Charly:

Why does the cafeteria look like a pig's pen?

Signed, Louie Nye

Dear Mr. Nye:

The reason that the cafeteria looks like a pig's pen is because many of the students who eat there are pigs! Here is my story. . . This is the cafeteria. People eat here. They also make a mess. When they make a mess, I clean it up. I'm a busboy. I carry a broom. My name is Lee. (Up with the appropriate music.) In the course of the supper hour, it is my job to sweep the floor of the snack-a-teria. On the floor I find such things as discarded copies of the Nittany Cub, what looks like pig entrails, and in general, a lot of shit. It's not a pretty sight. . . (So much for the theatrics).

Despite the pleas of "Shaky" Z, the Student Union Director, the deluge of garbage still continues to rain upon the floor of the overburdened cafeteria. This would seem to indicate that upon applying to the University, that students should be asked when they were toilet-trained, or if they even know what toilet-training is! If this was done, I think the results would set the University back 125 years.

As a solution to the problem,

CHARLY

I might suggest that Mr. Findly buy a goat to patrol the area and eat the garbage that never makes it to the trash barrels. ((Or Mr. Findly could eat it himself.) I don't think a goat in a pig's pen is strange. Gee, maybe we could make a movie out of it and call it "Guess Who's Coming To Dinner," that's pretty original.

In any event, I think that the problem of "why the cafeteria looks like a pig's pen could be solved best by our psychology department; they're well-versed in psychological abnormalities of children. They might come up with a concrete solution.

But for now, Louie, since you have to eat in Behrend's cafeteria with the other 13th and 14th graders. I would suggest you do four things: 1) bring a pair of high stilts so you can wade through the garbage without contacting junglerot, 2) bring a shovel and a rag to shovel out and wipe-off the table of your choice, 3) bring a can of disinfectant to spray your immediate eating area and, 4) bring a pocket-size dictionary of pig-latin so you can communicate with your fellow hungry students.

Signed, Charly

"PROJECT PEOPLE"

Pfc. Greg Holland, an Erie serviceman in Vietnam, has been writing to the American Government students at Erie's St. Benedict's Academy. He's been telling them of the starvation and devastation that is omnipresent in that tormented country. The students' reaction to the letters has been one of positive action to help alleviate the food problem. They pack food and articles in crates, and send them directly to the private so that he might have something to give to the starving throngs that he comes in contact with daily.

What does this have to do with Behrend students? Well, Jennie

Yearick of 137 Niagara Hall is presently considering initiating PROJECT PEOPLE, a program that will undertake the mission of feeding some of Vietnam's foodless population.

"PROJECT PEOPLE is the essence of man's humanity to man," said Jennie. "We need dedicated people to work in this mission of mercy. If we are successful here at Behrend, an inter-college system may be set up within the Erie area colleges to send food to Vietnam." If you wish to become involved with PROJECT PEOPLE, call Jennie at 899-1063.

Letters To The Editor

Ecology Day

An Open Letter to Students and Faculty:

Are you aware of the significance of April 22? This is the day when a nationwide Environmental Teach-In is scheduled to take place. Already thousands of campuses have begun to plan programs meant to dramatize the ecological ills threatening the world, and to develop programs of action.

The Teach-In was sponsored by Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) and Rep. Pete McCloskey (R-Cal.) with the intent of channeling some of the constructive energy and idealism of students toward the environmental crisis. As envisioned by these legislators the agenda should be planned and initiated by students. It might include panel discussions, symposia, displays or other formats that will emphasize the seriousness of the situation.

Since the initiative has not been taken by the students (perhaps because they didn't know of the Teach-In) and the time is growing short, we are calling for interested persons to come forward with ideas. What are some of the things that concern you about the environment? Are you curious to know the pros and cons concerning an East Access Bridge to Presque Isle? Is there a good substitute for D.D.T.? How much is the sewage treatment plant on campus polluting the stream which receives its effluent? What animals and plants are considered Endangered Species and why? What can be done about the beer can problem? Just how polluted is Lake Erie? We are asking that you give some thought to what you might contribute to the planning of events for April 22 and meet with us to exchange ideas. If you cannot attend, but are interested, let one of the following faculty members know. Your ideas can then be considered.

The meeting will take place on Thursday, March 5 at Common Hour (4:30 p.m.) in Room 101 of the Science Building.

Sincerely,

- Dr. Richard Bollinger

On Appropriations

Dear Mr. Kinkead:

I have a rather pacifying bit of news for the Behrend students and would like to share it with them.

While visiting down at State this past weekend, I had the good fortune to speak with the secretary of the Vice President of Public Relations, who also happens to be my aunt. She has had this position with the University for the past some twenty odd years and hence I feel safe in placing my confidence in what news she divulges to me. I got to rapping to her about the appropriations that haven't gone through and she said quote, "Those appropriations are expected to go through March 10th."

I would like to point out that what she said was purely speculation; however, as I said, I do place my confidence in her, and if this is any indication of what is to come, then I feel that the pressure the students and parents have applied is taking its toll. Keep up the pressure and urge your friends and parents to apply it also if you don't care for a raise in tuition.

Sincerely,
James M. Ott

Gannon's Position On Drug Abuse

As stated in a previous CUB article, Gannon College is initiating a Drug Abuse policy to assist in handling the student involved in the illegal use of the controlled drugs. The basic text of the article was taken from the Erie PRESS which stated that "...the Police will be given the right to search and seizure but will make no arrests."

However, the CUB office was given an official Gannon College Student Bulletin by Rev. Lawrence T. Speice, Dean of Students which made no such statement referring to "no arrests."

What the bulletin said was: "The college intends to cooperate with civil authorities in the identification and apprehension of the student drug abusers, and to that end, the College reserves the right to seek the assistance of civil authorities in the process of search and seizure . . . Gannon College will attempt to work out a method of operation with local, state, and federal authority."

BULLETIN BORED

Try-outs for the Behrend Players' Spring production, Depends What You Mean By Love, will take place in the Studio, on Monday, March 2, at 7:00 p.m. There are roles for ten women and six men in the play which will be produced by M. E. Grove. The play will be performed on May 16, 17, 18.

Feiffer's People, the Behrend Players', Mark Moffett production still has two more performances to go . . . tonight and tomorrow night, curtain time is 8:30, and admission is only a buck. This is the funniest, grossest, most effective tongue-in-cheek play ever written. If you would like to see yourself as others see you, you must see Feiffer's People.

The all-night party, sponsored by the Joint Residence Council, will be held in the Reed Union Building, Saturday, March 7, from 10 p.m. until 6:30 a.m.

Movies to be shown are "The Great Race" (color), "Tales of Terror" (color), "The Great Age of Comedy," "The Great Chase" with W. C. Fields, "Dracula" with Bela Lugosi, and "The Mummy" with Boris Karloff.

Other planned activities include a band jammy featuring the Knolf, a record jammy, games, contests, a variety show, and co-ed volleyball. Free refreshments will be served, and door prizes will be awarded.

Advance tickets will go on sale Monday in front of the cafeteria for $1.00 per person. At the door tickets will be $1.25.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"HOW DO THEY EXPECT US TO EVER GET AN EDUCATION IF WE HAVE TO SPEND ALL OUR TIME GOING TO CLASS."

Several changes in the registration procedure are planned for March 30th final registration for spring term.

Students will report to Erie Hall at the time designated according to an alphabetical division of names. All students must register at the assigned time.

Any changes will be made with the aid of representatives of the ten individual colleges who will be in Erie Hall during the registration period. This will eliminate the need for students to return to their advisors each time a schedule change is necessary.

The first meeting of the Samothrace Club of Behrend Campus will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Room of the Administration Building. Officers will be elected and work on the constitution will begin, so that the club can be chartered.

The Women's Residence Council will hold a dinner meeting Wednesday, March 11, at the
