Department Cuts Cited

Undergraduate majors in various colleges of the University are being discontinued in accordance with the restructuring of programs.

The option in teaching the emotionally and socially affected will be dropped by the College of Education beginning with Summer Term. A special education minor to take its place will train students as general special educators rather than teachers equipped to work with specific disabilities.

The College of Earth and Mineral Sciences discontinued the major in fuel science in January and will discontinue the major in fuel science in January and will discontinue the major in mineral preparation engineering in July.

Majors in botany and zoology in the College of Science will be dropped beginning with Summer Term in favor of a single major in biology. This action is intended to allow students more flexibility in planning their programs, simplify advising, and make the structure of the department more consistent with that of other departments.

Parking Lot Expansion Approved by University

The University's Board of Trustees has tentatively approved the construction of 110 additional student parking places at Behrend Campus at a cost of $68,000. These funds are made available from interim and short-term sources with such funds to be restored from student parking fees. A little simple arithmetic ($68,000-110-$22.50) indicates that, exclusive of routing maintenance and plowing, about 27½ years will pass before the cost of each space ($618) is restored.
