More Springtime Recreation

Construction is presently underway for the addition of two new tennis courts. The new courts will be located aside the presently existing courts along the driveway to the parking lots.

Student Marshals Purpose Restated

By Carol Turkington
News Reporter

The regulations for the Student Marshals of Behrend Campus have been revised during a recent meeting of the Students Marshals May 3.

From the resulting list of ideas, these are the main points:

- 1) Dismissal will result upon review if a Student Marshal is involved in violence, damage to property or person, or if he is found using or possessing drugs.
- 2) Student Marshals can aid in directing traffic in case of emergencies; they are able to ticket cars, and will take money from fines during the 8:00 A.M.-5:00 P.M. shift.
- 3) Presently ordered badges will be worn while on duty and ID cards will be in their possession.
- 4) Complaints of any kind will be given to Student Marshal Officers of the Inter-Marshal Monitoring Board. This Board will be chosen by Marshals themselves and duties will be defined on supplemental reports.
- 5) Officers will have an increase in pay as compared to other

Dr. Grubb Visits at Behrend

Richard E. Grubb, an assistant to President Oswald, attended several meetings at Behrend Campus last Wednesday, May 5. Grubb has been appointed by John W. Oswald, President of The Pennsylvania State University, to develop policies and procedures to provide a system of semi-autonomous Commonwealth Campuses that will be managed locally. This will permit each campus to develop according to its own strengths and characteristics.

During Grubb's visit he held three closed meetings with representatives from the administration, faculty, and student body.

Grubb is also meeting at all other Commonwealth Campuses to draw up procedures and policies which Oswald hopes to implement before Fall Term 1971.

University Council Meets; Daily Collegian Reviewed

University Park, Pa., May 6 — The University spent almost its entire session last Thursday in a question-answer period with three representatives of the Daily Collegian as an integral part of the study of the newspaper's relation to the University community.

Meeting with the Council were Teresa A. Borio, president of Collegian, Inc., the publisher of the Daily Collegian; Robert J. McHugh, editor; and Drue E. Haydt, Business manager.

Much discussion centered on the question of how the University could supply funds necessary for the Collegian to remain solvent without interfering with its autonomy or incurring liability for actions of the newspaper staff or Board of Directors.

Miss Borio discussed a number of steps the Board of Directors is considering relating to accuracy and fair play, grievance procedures, and matters that are not clearly dealt with in the by-laws of the Corporation.

Council Chairman Paul M. Althouse appointed a sub-committee to report to the Council on the financing options that would allow the Collegian to be more autonomous without severing its relationship to the University.

Named to the Committee were Margaret B. Matson, professor of sociology, Peter O'Donnell, student member of the Council, and Dixon Johnson, director of public information. Johnson is not a member of the Council but was asked to serve on the sub-committee.

Althouse informed the Council that University President John W. Oswald had accepted its recommendations on the University calendar through Spring, 1973, and the calendar is official.

Recommendations made by the Council to stagger the terms of office members have also been approved by the President, Althouse told the Council.

Vandalism Play Proves Costly

By Steve Green

Vandals inflicted an estimated $1200 damage to University and private property at Behrend Campus between 12 and 3 Sunday morning.

Investigation into the University property damage is being handled by Behrend Campus Security, while State Police are looking into vandalism incurred on the construction equipment owned by Mr. Onorato.

Onorato estimated the damage done to his equipment to range between $400 to $600. The bulk of the cost lies in the dump truck which was being used in the construction of the new picnic grove. DeForest Halberg, head of the security department said, the keys had been left in the ignition making it easy to break into.

Halberg said the list of suspects was long and all were Behrend students. He believed the incident occurred as a result of a kegger which took place prior to it.

Various buildings on campus were broken into. Windows were broken in both the Nick and Administration buildings. The North Cottage and cafeteria were also broken into. Security does not know when or how the cafeteria was entered, but said a number of chairs had been broken.

Onorato said completion of the picnic shelter will be hindered until necessary repairs are made on his equipment.

Seanor Comes 'Home'

Miss Berry Seanor is returning to Behrend Campus in the position of Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, effective July 1, 1971. She previously held this position last year.

Miss Ellyn Carroll, present Assistant Dean of Student Affairs will be moved to a new permanent position as Assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs.

Miss Seanor is presently at the Shenango Valley Campus as an assistant professor of journalism and was a former Behrend student.

Dean of Student Affairs, Benjamin A. Lane, said the added position will take a great load off the Office of Student Affairs and Miss Seanor will be concerned primarily with discipline and the resident halls.

Speakers Host Behrend May Day

By Jim Lyons
News Reporter

May Day activities at Behrend Campus were quiet and peaceful in contrast to those in Washington. "The Kent State Moratorium" was the title encompassing the two days of activities planned by the Student Union Board.

Speaking to the student body, Benjamin A. Lane, dean of student affairs talked of the impact the Kent State tragedy had on society and how it was affected students on a national scale.

Bishop Crittenden, Archbishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Erie, spoke to the students and staff on "Religion and the Cultural Revolution." Bishop Crittenden, a former college professor, is well known for his long standing criticism of the Vietnam War.

In his presentation, Bishop Crittenden touched on the War, youth alienation in society and the role of the clergy in this changing society. He encouraged active involvement of the clergy in solving social problems and thought they should take a stand on contemporary issues.

During the question and answer period that followed, Bishop Crittenden fielded questions on moral and immoral aspects of war and the sociological causes of discontent among young people towards the church and society.

Reverend Reed McFarlane, Unitarian Minister of The First Unitarian Society of Erie, spoke on civil disobedience in the Reed Lecture Hall the next evening. Reverend McFarlane emphasized the need for change in society starting at the local level. He said a utopian society should be based on humanity. Ideally there would be no laws for people would voluntarily live morally and be humanistic toward each other. Reverend McFarlane stressed non-violence in the revolutionary change and added if all else fails, violence and anarchy could be employed as instruments of change.
