OPEN HOUSE??

Have any of your friends or family ever asked you how they could get to see our campus, that is the entire campus -- inside and out? We have had a few requests from students, who were asked such a question, if it were possible for an open house or something similar. Our only solution right at the present time, since the buildings are locked on non-school days, is to invite your relatives and friends to the May Day ceremony next Saturday afternoon. The buildings will be open and they will be free to go about as they desire. We also feel that a request for an open house is a very good idea, especially since our campus at Highacres is still in its infant stages and since many area residents do not realize that we have a College here. Since it is too late this year to plan for an open-house, we hope that this suggestion will sink into the list of plans for next year.

CHIPPY

Hi there,

Gosh, isn't this weather great? All I've been doing this week is sitting on the lawn taking in the sun and watching students loafing, walking around, and playing catch with a huge round disc that once almost knocked me back into my hole. Well, I've seen a lot of things these last few days, but it's so hot that my memory has probably melted away. Ho hum, I'll just move under this blue spruce tree where it's nice and shady and where no one will bother me.

That Woytek kid is quite a catcher. He, Pete and Max were throwing that big thing that almost knocked me down. Then some girl came along and asked if she could 'fire a few'. Wow!! That thing, I think I heard someone call it a ball, really took a beating from those characters.

I took in a Pol. Sci. 10 class by the outside fountain and I guess my friend the Bumblebee wanted to study footnotes too because he was chasing the two girls in the class from their seats.

As I was hopping down the road, I saw "Hou" pick some apple blossoms. I was going to tell him not to do it, but when he said he was going to give them to his Spanish teacher, I left him go. I heard that Miss Grennan accepted the bouquet with joy. The early bird catches the worm, but Yandell beat you all to it. You may take the teacher an apple, but he took her the apple blossoms. Clever, huh?

I heard a few boys talking madly about something that was printed in last week's Collegian. But when I read that article on that Friday night dance, I didn't interpret it to mean that those boys did any harm. I saw that gang that came up from the bottom of the hill that night. There were only 4 of them, but the four were not Steve, Danny, George, Arch and Steve. By golly that's 5, isn't it? Then how could they be the ones. Anyway, these 5 guys didn't go to the dance together, so how could they be the gang?

On Wednesday afternoon, I decided to go under the oak by the Chem Lab to take a snooze. I was dreaming about the animal war with 'Ole Chippy' leading the other 'Chips' into combat. Explosions were being set off all around me. What a position for me to be in. When I awoke from my dream, I saw smoke pouring out and test tubes flying from the Chem Lab. Here it wasn't a dream at all, but the Chem class having a battle. They had six explosions in two hours with Eddie Ferko winning the new Fermallyhyde Medal of Honor for performing two.
