Wear earrings.

Wear a big, red bow in their hair. (Ribbon must be 2 inches wide)

Carry Sophomore girls' books whenever asked.

Sing the following jingle at the request of any Sophomore girl.

I am a sorority pledge
Theta Sigma Pi's its name
I'm gaining college fame
That's all there is.

It is customary for any good paper to periodically list its editorial policy for its readers, a policy which it conscientiously follows throughout the year. As we begin our new year, we of the Collegian staff have decided to list for your criticism and reference, our guide posts for the coming semester.

In issues to follow, we will examine, criticize-in the pure sense of the word-advocate, or oppose the proposals and actions taken by Student Council as it manages our extra-curricular activities. The fact that an issue is controversial will not prohibit our examination of influence our results. We will not always wait for Council to act. We plan to scrutinize in the future, such subjects as : sports, extra curricular activities, and parking problems.

We shall, if we deem it advisable, criticize or question Council's action or inaction, suggesting always how and what we would have done. If some students' action requires comment, we shall not fail to give it.

Subject to the same sin of changing our minds as most people are, we stand now for a Student Council that leads its electors, provides them with a complete social program and settles their school problems, a student body that is well mannered and represents a college student body.

With an open mind, we will gladly receive the same type of criticism that we might give to school issues.
