DISPENSARY

The human body can be compared to a machine in that it does not operate at peak efficiency when some of its parts are worn, broken, or "ailing". When this condition occurs the machine is sent to a repairman. The University realizes that a student who does not feel good cannot do his best work. Therefore the university maintains a complete dispensary and retains a full-time nurse. There is no reason why, if you don't feel well you shouldn't go and see Mrs. Kostenbauder. She will be more than happy to put you back in working order.

X-RAY TO VISIT CENTER

The Pennsylvania Bureau of Tuberculosis Control will send a mobil unit to X-ray all students on November 17, 1955. The bus will locate in the usual place, the entrance to South Hall.

Our enlarged enrollment will require the co-operation of every one. An X-ray and a report is a must with every student and it is to his or her advantage to be on the campus and avail yourself of this free service. If you do not have an X-ray taken on that day, the follow up will be an extra expense that the university is not responsible for.

Faculty and staff are invited to use the privilege of this service.

CONGRATULATIONS

The entire staff of the Highacres "Collegian" extends our best wishes to Lillian Junas, a recent addition to the staff of the Penn State "Daily Collegian."

A fifth-semester student, majoring in Journalism, and last year's efficient editor of the Highacres Collegian, Miss Junas is the women's sports feature writer and her articles can be seen rather frequently in the main campus newspaper.
