WARRIORS WIN TOURNAMENT

The powerful warriors, led by high-scoring Tom Mlasgar, who pumped in 30 points, rode to an easy 66-54 win over the Pistons last Friday to win the Penn State Double Elimination Basketball Tournament. The Warriors, who all season had a deadly, well-balanced team went through the Tournament without a loss.

The winners jumped to a big 9 point lead at the quarter, and led by 7 at half time. At the 3 quarter mark they held a six point lead.

Bob Miller with 13 points, and Joe Lona with 11, together with Mlasgar provided the necessary punch for the Champions. Pete Timinski, with 19 points, and Bob Wasno, with 17 points led the Pistons.

MUSIC TEAM WINS TITLE

A never-say-die Music team are the champions of the first Penn State Center Bowling League-winning the title in true championship style. Music took 2 out of 3 from Engineering, to win the title, in a season which was successful and highly exciting.

Before the match-of-the-year began, the championship hung on a few 'ifs': If Music took 2 games, they were champs; If Music lost 2, and Accounting lost 1 game, engineering would be champs; If Music lost 2 and Accounting won all 3, accounting would be champs.

Music lost the first game to Engineering; Accounting won their first game from Algebra. Music then came from behind to take the second game by only 20 points. Accounting won their second game. In the pressure game, Music walloped Engineering to take the title; Accounting took their game to wind up second best, only 1/2-game behind.

Leon Dapson, with a 469 triple, led the Music team, with Jerry Burkat helping out with a 416. Ray Bittner, the League's high-average champ, led the Engineering team with a 457.

Jim Koren, with a 454, and Andy Gozjack, with a 410, paced the Accounting team, while Connie Dougherty, with a 445, and Billy Smith, with a 427, led the Algebra team.

A slice of watermelon was a most wonderful and useful thing in the early days. With one you could eat, drink, and wash your face.
