

HTGHACRES COLLEGIAN

March Weather

I attended school for seven months and did my work quite well
I kept my notes neat and readable; this story my marks will tell.
I was ambitious and industrious, prepared for every quiz
I studied diligently each night, and got the nickname "Whiz."
And then one bright March morning I awoke and to my surprise
The grass was green the sky was blue - all this before my eyes.
I attended school that fateful day but didn't hear a word
I made the motion of taking notes - this really was absurd.
The professor talked continuously and I just gazed at him
My mind was on the fishing season-soon to begin.
I also thought of all the girls, the eligible ones, that is and wondered if they'd go out with me - especially "Liz."
The class was nearly over and my belongings I did seek
When I heard the teacher say to us - a blue book's due next week.
My pleasant thought and wishful thinking still remained with me
After all, what's another blue book - just another "C."
That night I tried to study but study wouldn't come
I closed the books and faced the facts - I really was dumb.
Next morning jumping out of bed, to the window I did go

"Anbody who thinks people have no originality should watch them folding road maps."

And on the ground, instead of grass, I saw a layer of snow.
Quite dejectedly I realized that Spring Hadn't arrived yesterday
It was only Hazleton's unique climate that made it seem like May.
I decided in the future that I would work as hard as a beaver
Nothing was going to pull my marks down - especially Spring Fever.
